REVOLT HITS COLOMBIA

BECK REFUSES TO TESTIFY AGAIN — Teamsters Czar Dave Beck (right) talks to his new attorney, Edward Williams, before returning to the stand at the Senate rackets probe in Washington. Beck constantly used the Fifth amendment, even to the extent of refusing to say whether he knew his own son.

Beck's Partner Says He Shared in 'Fees'

WASHINGTON (UP) — Teamsters President Dave Beck got "brokerage fees" for investing millions of dollars of his union's funds for which he was trustee, one of his partners testified today.

Donol Hedlund, a Seattle mortgage banker, told the Senate Labor Rackets Committee that he and Simon Wampold, an attorney for the union, also shared the fees.

Hedlund said the first such fee the trio split was $7,500 from the union's purchase of $1,600,000 worth of mortgages in Detroit.

In 1954, Hedlund testified, the three split a total of $29,425.27. Beck getting a third of that total.

Hedlund said the fees were paid to a brokerage firm, called "The Investment Co.," which he, Beck and Wampold organized.

May Probe Big Loan

The committee may also explore the Teamsters' $1,500,000 loan to Fruehauf Trailer Corp of Detroit.

Fred P. Loomis of Seattle testified Thursday that for several years he was investment counsellor to both Beck and the union but quit in February, 1955, when he became convinced Beck was using his union power to enrich himself and his family.

Loomis said his "blow-up" with Beck came because he treated the union president "like an ordinary mortal."

Called "His Majesty"

"He might have been a big wheel but to me he was just a hub cap," said the small, precise investment counsellor. Other documents during the day referred to the portly Teamster boss as "His majesty, the wheel."

Loomis said he heard Beck was to get a kickback of $32,500 from a Teamster - financed apartment project in Honolulu. The deal later fell through, he added.

He said he also learned Beck and two others had formed an investment company through which funds were apparently channeled to the union president.

Baby Crushed to Death by Golf Cart

FORT LAUERDALE, Fla (UP) — Fourteen-month-old Curtis Migrala was crushed too death by an electric golf cart Thursday.

The infant and his brother, Mark, 2½, were playing with the golf car in a vacant store which their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Migrala, were inspecting. Mark, playing that he was driving the cart, accidently set it in motion and the vehicle crushed the toddling Curtis, his father reported.

Parochial School Evacuated by Minor Blaze

Over 300 school children were evacuated quickly and safely yesterday afternoon when a minor fire broke out in a small room off the auditorium at St. Leonard Parochial School.

The alarm sent every available piece of Monessen fire equipment to the scene in a matter of minutes.

The fire, mostly dense smoke, was confined to the small room housing janitorial supplies. The fire was of undetermined origin. Damage was negligible.

Firemen used two booster lines to quell the blaze. Louis Tatsch, custodian, also used the school fire hose.

The students were in class when an unidentified passerby saw smoke seeping through an auditorium door on a side of the building located on Seventh St. and Schoonmaker Ave. She immediately notified Sister Agnes Claire, who in turn, summoned Tatsch.

Meanwhile, the children, most of whom thought it was a practice fire drill, were being evacuated. Nuns and a lay teacher marched the children a safe distance from the school, in little more than a minute.

When the all-clear signal was given, the Rev. Martin J. O'Toole, church administrator, dismissed classes for the day.

The building was cleared of the dense smoke in time for a party in the auditorium last night.

Leader Closes, Locks Door on Racing Bill Referendum for Year

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has closed and locked the barn door on the controversial pari-mutuel horse racing referendum for this year.

There was some doubt previously about the governor's intentions because he did not use the word "veto" in a recent statement in which he said he would oppose the horse-race referendum if the Legislature sent it to his desk.

When he was asked at his news conference Thursday whether the statement meant he would veto the bill, the governor replied:

"I don't like to threaten, but I think it's quite obvious from my statement that I would."

The governor said his final stand on the Senate-approved legislation, which was a reversal of what he said a week earlier when he indicated he would not interfere with the right of the people to vote on the question, did not affect his relations with Democratic State Chairman Joseph M. Barr, who was strongly in favor of putting the question on the November ballot.

"Joe and I are the best of friends," the governor said.

"I think he's the best state chairman the Democratic party has had since I've been around politically."

The Legislature adjourned for the week Thursday with little or no action on the governor's proposed legislative program, including the administration's higher education program which was introduced in the House after having been sponsored in the Senate earlier.

Fights for Program

Leader continued to battle vigorously for his plans to have more Pennsylvania youths attend college. He termed the program "the most important single issue in the Legislature."

When it was pointed out that many lawmakers from his own party opposed his proposal for a penny a bottle soft drink tax to finance the program, the governor said:

"I did not think it would be intellectually honest to propose a program and not couple a tax to pay for it. I didn't want people to say that the governor is just trying to make a record."

The possibility that the General Assembly might enact the program but decline to pass a tax to finance it was pointed out. Asked what he would do in such a case the governor said:

"I don't know what I'd do—but I'd sure like to get the program."

Leader said that according to a survey of state government finances made by the federal Bureau of Census, Pennsylvania ranks 45th among the states in the aid it contributes to higher education.

Meanwhile, there were strong indications that the Republican-controlled Legislature will take no action this session on the administration's aid-to-students plans.

A GOP sponsored resolution introduced Wednesday calls for the Joint State Government Commission to conduct a study of the higher education problem and report its findings to the next Legislature.

Sponsors of the resolution, including House GOP Leader Albert W. Johnson (McKean) conceded that Leader's program "represents many meritorious ideas and deserves a serious and comprehensive study."

"We are sure that the governor

Police to Watch Teenage Drivers

HARRISBURG (UP) — State Police will be alerted this weekend to pay particular attention to reckless driving by teenagers in automobiles.

Gov. George M. Leader, announcing the crackdown, said the orders came as a result of several accidents involving teenage drivers in the past several weeks. Four accidents claimed the lives of 12 youths in recent weeks, Leader said.

"I feel it is proper that this stepped-up effort should begin Mother's Day weekend," the governor said. "We want to do everything in our power to eliminate these family tragedies."

Four Charleroi Youths Held in Meter Thefts

Four teenage Charleroi youths have been apprehended in connection with the theft of parking meter money in Charleroi.

Charleroi police have been investigating the theft and damaging of parking meters for several weeks. They said an undisclosed amount of money had been taken in a four-week period.

The four boys, ranging from 13 to 15 years, are charged with removing two meters and using a sledge hammer to break open the cash drawers.

Charleroi police gave the following report on the meter case.

Two complete meters destroyed; sixteen handles removed from meters; seven coin drawers stolen and ten broken coin drawers.

Police are continuing their investigation.

The youths have been released into the custody of their parents.

Leader Appeals For Caution in Forest Areas

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has appealed to Pennsylvania citizens to guard against the increasing danger of forest fires in the woodlands of the state.

Leader said at his news conference Thursday many fires are raging in New England and New York state and the Commonwealth has indicated it will aid those areas in any way possible if the state is called on for help.

Dr. Richard M. Gerstell, state director of civil defense, said that in view of recent dry weather, Pennsylvania woodlands are "rapidly approaching the point" where fires could be disastrous.

Leader said that already this year the state had approximately 600 such fires—more than the total number in 1956.

American Speedboat Fired on in Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (Saturday) (UP) — Publisher Gardner Cowles and his party narrowly escaped death or injury Friday when six bullets were fired at a U. S. Embassy speedboat carrying the party on a sightseeing excursion.

One bullet passed directly between a camp chair on which Cowles was seated, passing between his legs and smashing into the bulkhead within inches of news correspondent Edward R. Kennedy.

The bullets were fired by unidentified assailants using a .38 caliber sub-machine gun from the shore about 200 yards away.

The launch on which the party was riding is a former U.S. Navy picket patrol boat being used by a U.S. Navy attache and was flying the American flag which was displayed prominently.

No Explanation

The shooting occurred five miles north of Bangkok on the Chao Phya River which is the main waterway of Bangkok. Cowles and nine other Americans were returning from a visit to ancient Thai capital grounds near Bangkok.

A police shore installation was contacted half a mile from the scene and armed Thai police boarded the American launch to convoy the vessel back to Bangkok.

No immediate explanation was available for the shooting. One unofficial source said he believed "someone was shooting at the American flag, trying to create an incident."

Cowles is president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and publisher of Look Magazine.

Rojas Pinilla Rule Falls to Military Junta

BOGOTA, Colombia (UP)—The government of President Gustavo Rojas Pinilla fell to a military junta today.

A broadcast over the official radio at 7 a. m. (8 a.m. e. d. t.) said the junta is composed of Maj. Gen. Alfredo Duarte Blum, commander of the army; Brig. Gen. Deogracias Fonseca, director of the national police; and Maj. Gen. Gabriel Paris, minister of war.

Authoritative Colombian circles in New York said Rojas Pinilla and his family fled to Montego Bay, Jamaica, British West Indies. They said the deposed president and his party arrived there at 8 a. m. e.d.t. aboard a Colombian air force plane.)

Rojas Pinilla was elected in 1954 to a term scheduled to end Aug. 7, 1958. But his hand-picked puppet assembly elected him to a second term, which would have ended in 1962, only this past Wednesday night.

There had been violent opposition to his dictatorial moves throughout the country for more than a week, with many persons reported killed by government forces.

Future not Clear

Thursday, high prelates of the influential Roman Catholic Church condemned the government of Rojas Pinilla for "murder" in putting down the opposition. The government had blamed the violence on Communists.

The immediate future of the country was not clear, but a joint civilian-military government was considered a possibility.

Crisanto Cardinal Luque, archbishop of Bogota, charged Colombian soldiers with committing murder in the slaying of two students in Bogota last Sunday.

A report from Cali, the chief city of southwestern Colombia, said Bishop Julio Caicedo Tellez announced excommunication for all "who ordered assassinations during the tragic events of last Monday and Wednesday."

Reports of the violence in Cali have been sketchy but they have put the death toll at from 19 to 50.

Dent to Support Organization in May 21 Primary

HARRISBURG (UP) — Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent has pledged his active support of Democratic organization candidates in his home county of Westmoreland in the May 21 primary "from top to bottom."

"This endorsement is based from a feeling of political gratitude and for the support I have received over the many years," he said. "It has nothing to do with persons or personalities."

Dent said he issued the statement because "many of my friends are disturbed because conflicting stories have been told concerning my stand in the coming primary."

"The party has selected men of good character, good political background, and proven public servants," he said. "I fully expect to support whomever is nominated with all the vigor and support that I can command. The primary is just a preliminary battle and the real fight is always in the general."

Bell stated the state had acquired some of the properties through condemnation proceedings. Other property must be acquired before the plans can be fully developed.

New England Forest Fires Under Control

BOSTON (UP) —Weary firemen appeared today to be winning the battle of the New England forest fires. A dawn check showed every major forest fire in New England "under control. But conditions remained "explosive" because of lack of rain.

This was the situation at the major fires:

Plymouth, Mass.: The 20,000-acre holocaust contained on every side. West of Plymouth, 30 cottages burned. North of the town, a minor fire put out. South of the town, Priscilla Beach saved by a natural fire break created from an older burned-out area. Eleven hundred firemen still at the scene.

Kennebunk, Me.: Touch and go though under control after burning 12 buildings.

Athol, Mass.: After threatening the city of Athol this fire was contained by 500 volunteers and firemen of a dozen departments, who walked two miles through woods to stem the flames in a night-long struggle.

Pembroke, N.H.: One home and other farm buildings engulfed by flames, but the 700-acre fire is under control.

The fairness region had the promise of a few showers tonight but weather forecasters said they doubted the showers could completely put out the remnants of some 70 fires from Maine to Connecticut.

Near Montague to the west more than 1,000 firefighters including some 200 University of Massachusetts students battled a roaring fire which caused the evacuation of 40 families in the Lake Pleasant area.

Other fires which were reported still burning but under control were in Manchester, Amesbury, Milton, Dudley, Billerica and Boylston. At one time Thursday

Economy Wave Picks Up Speed

Ike Will Speak on Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UP)—The congressional economy wave boiled onward today with increasing power that made it appear more and more unstoppable.

President Eisenhower planned to try to stop it, in two national TV-radio speeches within the next two weeks. The White House said he would defend his record peacetime budget in general and foreign aid in particular.

But Eisenhower may be too late. Within less than 24 hours:

—The Senate Appropriations Committee ignored administration warnings of new mail service cutbacks and approved a House cut of 58 million dollars in the Post Office Department's new budget.

—The House Appropriations Committee called a closed meeting that was expected to result in a cut in the usually untouchable farm program.

—Cuts in the foreign aid program still deeper than the 500 million dollars proposed by the President were called for by congressional Democratic leaders.

Thirty-Minute Speeches

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty announced the President had asked the radio-TV networks for 30 minutes next Tuesday to speak to the people on "the cost of their government" and the importance of the $71,800,000,000 budget to national security.

Hagerty said the President also wanted to make another national TV - radio address the following week on why the foreign aid program "is so essential to winning the peace."

A spokesman for the Democratic National Committee said the committee will "wait and listen" to the Eisenhower speeches before deciding whether to demand equal TV-radio time.

Hagerty announced the presidential speeches only a few hours after Eisenhower appealed to GOP and Democratic congressional leaders at a White House meeting to help protect the foreign aid program.

President Offers Compromise

Eisenhower told the leaders that he would settle for 520 million dollars less than the $4,400,000,000 that he originally requested.

But Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told newsmen $2,400,000,000 should be "wholly adequate" for foreign aid —a further cut of one and a half billion dollars.

Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield (Mont.) said he thought foreign aid could be cut to about three billion dollars.

Moreover, Mansfield said "no one" at the White House meeting "expressed any enthusiasm for the full amount."

Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said he expects Congress will "substantially approve" the half-billion cut. He also said Congress may come up with a "different figure" from the one Eisenhower proposed.

Fulton Claims Flood Project Should Wait

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Rep. James G. Fulton, Dormont Republican, declared today "there is no place in the tight federal budget" for the proposed million-dollar appropriation to start work on the giant Kinzua Allegheny River flood control dam this year.

"Everybody's talking about economy," Fulton told the United Press, "but then they say don't start your economy here. I'm not that way."

Fulton became the second Western Pennsylvania congressman to oppose immediate start of work on the 100-million dollar reservoir. Rep. John P. Saylor, Johnstown Republican, announced Thursday that he will go before the House appropriations subcommittee on Public Works next week to oppose the project.

Fulton said he believed Congress should "go slow" on the Kinzua project because:

—There still remain "engineering differences of opinion" regarding the dam.

—There should be an overall study of the water supply problems of the upper Ohio River basin and the Pittsburgh district before work is started on the dam, since a major purpose of the project is regulating flow of the Allegheny River.

—Priority should be given to the Delaware River channel deepening project and to the repair of deteriorated navigation facilities in the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers.

—Opposition to the project in areas of New York which would be affected should be dealt with before going ahead with the project.

—Thorough consideration should be given to the contention of the Seneca Indian Nation that treaty rights would be violated by the flooding of portions of two reservations.

"It's time to make a survey of the whole basin to correlate plans with an overall water policy and time to stop the log-rolling," the congressman said.

He pointed out that he already has opposed construction of a federal dam in the West Branch of the Mahoning River near Youngstown, Ohio, and that he was taking the same position in regard to the Kinzua project.

In calling for priority for rehabilitation of locks and dams in the Ohio River navigation system, Fulton said that lock sills and retaining walls are crumbling.

"One breech in a dam like that at New Cumberland, W. Va., could tie up navigation for six months to a year," Fulton said.

The congressman said his stand would draw the fire of business interests in the Pittsburgh district, but added:

"Some businessmen are strongly for economy everywhere but Pittsburgh."

Control

19 major fires were out of control in Massachusetts.

Gov. Foster Furcolo, on duty 48 straight hours, said Thursday night that the Massachusetts National Guard would be mobilized if the situation became any worse today. Nearly 7,000 firemen and volunteers, wearied by a week of constant battling, had to have some rest, the governor said. Ordering the guard to duty would put an additional 12,000 men at the disposal of civil defense headquarters, supervising the statewide operations.

Arson has been reported in at least four instances and state police said Thursday night they planned to move in on one suspect.

A fierce blaze near West Kennebunk, Me., seared some 4,000 acres of woodlands Thursday and forced the closing of the Maine Turnpike for several hours. The flames leveled about a dozen houses and other structures in the area. Another bad fire near Lubec, the easternmost town in the United States, destroyed nine buildings before it was brought under control.

In all about 20 fires raged through the state and more than 5,000 acres of woodlands were destroyed.

New Hampshire forest officials said Thursday night a 700-acre blaze near Pembroke "was still not under control."

House Group Sinks Economy Ax into The Farm Program

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Appropriations Committee sank its economy ax into the usually immune farm program today, chopping $272,556,860 from President Eisenhower's money requests.

Most of the saving was achieved by reducing soil bank funds which farmers receive for cutting back plantings.

The committee said folks consider the program to be a scheme for "giving farmers something for nothing" and recommended that the soil bank fund be cut back further next year.

The action came as the economy drive already was rolling along so furiously as to raise considerable doubt whether President Eisenhower's personal intervention would be enough to stop it.

The House committee voted to send to the floor for debate next week a $3,692,889,757 money bill to operate the Agriculture Department and some of its programs in the 12 months starting July 1.

Included was $2,083,000,000 to pick up the tab for price support and other losses during the past year.

The cut of more than 272 million dollars in administration requests was in addition to a 254 million dollar soil bank reduction the administration already had made in revising its original farm budget estimates.

If the reductions win House and Senate approval, it would be the first time since Eisenhower took office that his farm budget was cut. In the past four years, Congress has wound up voting more farm funds than the administration requested.

The committee action raised the possibility that total farm program spending in the next fiscal year including separately-financed price support funds — may be reduced about 500 million dollars below the administration's original $5,300,000,000 estimate.

will agree that the vast complicated problem deserves treatment by the General Assembly's top research agency," a statement accompanying the resolution said.

Before it adjourned for the week the House passed 149-6 and returned to the Senate the much amended bill to limit wire tapping. As first enacted by the Senate, the bill would have outlawed wire tapping in any form. But the House revised it to permit the practice by law enforcement officials if they first obtain court permission. Evidence obtained through the wire taps would not be admitted in court cases.

By a vote of 153-11 the House also approved legislation to establish a "watchdog" committee over state finances. Its most important functions would come when the General Assembly was not in session.

Reds to Appeal to Congress

To Ask End Of Nuclear Explosions

MOSCOW (UP)—The Supreme Soviet resolved today to appeal directly to the American Congress and British Parliament for an immediate end to nuclear test explosions.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko charged before Russia's parliament that the Western powers "consistently oppose and undermine efforts to reach agreement" on disarmament.

In a report on atomic tests, he reiterated that Russia will continue to produce nuclear weapons and guided missiles as long as there is no agreement banning them.

After Gromyko's report — his first to parliament since succeeding Dmitri Shepilov as foreign minister — the Supreme Soviet voted its direct approach to American and British lawmakers.

The resolution called for all three parliaments to organize a joint committee which would exchange opinions on the methods of outlawing tests and eventually banning use of nuclear weapons.

Discusses Parley

The Supreme Soviet earlier unanimously approved Communist Party Chief Nikita Khrushchev's sweeping shakeup of the nation's industry—after adding a number of amendments.

In making his report, Gromyko spoke for 20 minutes. He discussed the London disarmament conference and the overall negotiations on nuclear control.

He offered the first official Soviet answer to recent Western statements that nuclear tests should be registered because not all can be detected by outside nations.

"This contradicts the facts," Gromyko said. "The explosion has not yet occurred which remained undetected."

Western statesmen, including President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, declared this spring that Russia probably can carry out undetected tests in its vast land mass.

'Mounting Crisis' In Education Is Coming in State

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader said Thursday night that Pennsylvania faces a "mounting crisis" in higher education because of a lack of facilities and funds.

The Governor, addressing a Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner here said two out of three eligible high school students seeking admission to colleges in the Philadelphia area are refused because of the lack of facilities.

Leader said a survey conducted by the State Department of Public Instruction showed the need for an "equal opportunity for college" program already proposed to the legislature.

He said three things need to be done; increase the colleges' facilities; give opportunity to those who deserve the chance for a higher education but cannot afford it; and plan college programs which will meet the needs of 1970 as well as 1957.

Hearing Today Over Allegheny River Dam

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Leon H. Gavin (R—Pa.) said today he hopes the House Appropriations Committee will approve a one million dollar request to start construction of a dam and reservoir on the Allegheny River at Kinzua, Pa.

Gavin, who has been working for the project for years, made the statement as the committee's public works subcommittee prepared to open hearings on it.

Among today's scheduled witnesses was Sen. Edward Martin, (R—Pa.) who is supporting the project "all the way." A representative of the Pittsburgh Coal Exchange also was slated to back the project at the closed-door hearings.

Remaining witnesses, listed as opponents, were: Robert A. Phair of the Friends Committee on National Legislation; Leo T. Connor, Indian Rights Assn.; William Zimmerman, Association of American Indians; and four spokesmen for the Seneca nation of Indians.

The President's budget for fiscal 1958 includes one million dollars as a starter on the project. Its eventual cost, including land acquisition, is estimated at 100 to 125 million dollars. Some $624,000 was previously appropriated for plans and specifications.

The project would create an artificial lake 29 miles long. It would flood some lands in the Allegany Indian Reservation in New York and Corn Planter Reservation in Pennsylvania.

Gavin and additional backers of the project are scheduled to appear before the subcommittee next Wednesday. Rep. John P. Saylor (R—Pa.), an opponent, is slated to testify next Monday.

Clarion County Forest Fire Destroys Acres

CLAIRON, Pa. (UP)—A forest fire which burned for 10 hours destroyed 650 acres of "cutover" timberland in northwestern Clarion County Thursday.

A second blaze burned through between 200 and 300 acres in Jefferson County.

The Clarion County blaze was brought under control shortly before midnight. About 300 men, most of them volunteer firemen from 11 companies in Clarion, Forest and Venango counties, battled the flames. Two bulldozers were used to help clear paths through the heavy timber and brush so "back fires" could be started.

The Rev. Earl Thomas, pastor of the Baptist Church at Reidsburg and manager of the Marcia Lumber Company, said two saw mills imperiled by the flames were saved. Much of the destroyed timberland was owned by the lumber firm.

The fire broke out at Licking Creek, near Snydersburg, and Leeper, near the crest County line.

Pinza Funeral Service Tomorrow

NEW YORK (UP) — A funeral service will be held here Saturday for Ezio Pinza, operatic and musical comedy star, who died Thursday at the age of 64.

Canon Edward N. West will officiate at the service at 11 a.m., e.d.t. at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Eleanor Steber, a Metropolitan Opera Co. soprano and personal friend of Pinza, will sing "Ave Maria" from Verdi's "Otello," one of the famed basso's favorite selections. The Episcopal cathedral's full choir of 40 boys and 27 men also will participate in the service.

Burial will be in Putnam Cemetery in Greenwich, Conn.

Petitions To Delay Pike Trial

HARRISBURG (UP) — Dauphin County Court will hear petitions May 20 that may delay the start of the Pennsylvania Turnpike conspiracy trials scheduled for June 4.

Nine separate petitions were filed with Acting President Judge William H. Neely Thursday by some of the 22 defendants indicted on criminal conspiracy charges in an alleged multi-million dollar swindle of Turnpike Commission funds.

Bills of particulars, by which more information about the charges were sought, were filed by:

Charles W. Stickler, Mohnton RD 1, president of the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp., Reading; Clayton A. Landsidle, Shillington, the firm's vice president and general manager, both also charged with obtaining money under false pretenses; G. J. Hudert and E. J. Donnelly, employes of the J. E. Greiner Co., Baltimore, former turnpike consulting engineers.

Demurrers to the indictments were filed by suspended Turnpike Commissioner James F. Torrance, Export; John D. Paul, former chief engineer in charge of turnpike construction; Theodore S. Paul, former turnpike legal counsel, and Thomas J. Evans, Coaldale, former turnpike chairman.

Landsidle also asked the court for permission to inspect the testimony he gave before a special grand jury.

Prince Charles' Operation May Start Controversy

LONDON (UP) — Eight-year-old Prince Charles licked happily at scoops of post-operative ice cream today unaware that having his tonsils and adenoids out may have started a nationl controversy.

Thursday's operation confined Prince Charles to bed in Buckingham Palace and put him on an initial diet of ice cream.

Outside the palace his tonsillectomy had another effect.

Britain's press immediately raised the question: "Is this operation really necessary?"

With medical opinion divided on the question, the answer given by Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh may set the pattern for many more British mothers and fathers. For what the royal family does carries a great deal of weight with the average Briton.

Pittsburgh Coal Looks to Illinois

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company is studying a possible move into the Illinois coal fields.

The company said Thursday it is "looking" at about 40,000 acres near Hillsboro, Montgomery County, Ill., but has made no decision whether to acquire the coal land.

Acquisition of the land by Pitt Consol would mark the first move by a big eastern coal company into the Illinois fields.

Campbell was transferred from his post of district engineer at Hollidaysburg, where he will be succeeded by Victor B. Leopold, Hollidaysburg, who will receive $10,432 in the district post.

Campbell will coordinate the office of Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler and the various divisions of the agency. He will also act as engineering advisor to Lawler.

House Approves Elimination of 'Machinery Tax' in Allegheny

HARRISBURG (UP)—Legislation to eliminate the so-called "machinery tax" in Allegheny County was ready for Senate consideration after clearing the House and several roadblocks.

The House approved the bill Thursday, 113-43, after voting down two attempts to delay final action and a pair of amendments from Allegheny County members. The bill goes to the Senate Monday.

The Allegheny County delegation had a field day for more than two hours as Democrats and Republicans crossed party lines to support and oppose one another on the merits of the legislation. The House GOP caucus endorsed the bill as "one which will bring new industry" into the county. Opponents charged the legislation would bankrupt the local communities and they would have to search for other sources of revenue.

Before the final passage vote came here is how the House acted:

—Voted 112-48 against sending the bill back to committee for further study.

—Voted 110-51 against postponing action on the legislation until next week.

—Voted down amendments to change the effective date to 1960. chinery", 50-110.

—Defeated proposed amendments to define the term "machinery", 50-0.

The bill specified the tax would be eliminated on a sliding scale over a five-year period starting in 1958 so communities would have an opportunity to adjust their budgets. Previous Legislatures removed the tax in the state's 66 other counties and Pittsburgh.

The legislation was sponsored by Allegheny County Republicans Ronald R. Thompson and Laurence V. Gibb. Thompson said the tax had "in part" caused 58 industries to leave the county during the past five years.

Rep. John T. Walsh (R-Allegheny), an assessor, charged the removal of the revenue source would force the affected communctaoinuldrhs cmfwypjqkgbv ities to enact wage taxes. The bill would prohibit a county from assessing industrial machinery as real estate for tax purposes.

Linde Workers Reject Proposal

KITTANNING, Pa. (UP)—Workers at the Linde Air Products Co. plant here have voted "almost unanimously" to reject a proposal for a new contract which would have ended a four-month wage dispute.

According to Robert T. Himes, secretary of the Linde unit of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, the rejection was "merely an authorization" to have the union negotiate further.

Himes said most of the 160 members voted against the proposal which was submitted to the union early Thursday, following an all-day meeting with federal mediators and Linde officials.

The First Task of Independent Voters

THE VOTERS of Westmoreland County who wish to improve the calibre of the county's judiciary have a splendid opportunity to do so this year. In fact they will have two opportunities—in the primaries on May 21 and again at the November general election.

Because the situation is unusually complicated, independent voters will need to think straight and act decisively. No fewer than six candidates are running for the two nominations to be made by each party at the primary.

We do not like to approach any election in a negative manner; we would prefer to have our comments be in a positive vein. But the first task which unbossed voters in both parties have to do is to break the hold of a rotten political machine on the courts and the political life of Westmoreland County.

Voters who agree with us that this needs to be done can do it most quickly and surely by refusing to vote at the primaries for the two machine candidates for judge — Judge Edward G. Bauer and L. Alexander Sculco.

We discussed Judge Bauer's record in this space on Wednesday. Both as district attorney and judge he failed to perform his sworn duty, allowing syndicated rackets to soil the reputations of our communities. As a judge he has flagrantly violated the ethics of the legal profession, which require judges to refrain from partisan activity. He has been strictly political in the one place above all where politics does not belong—in the courts.

* * *

MR. SCULCO'S record is no better. He is completing his second term as district attorney, in which office he, too, has ignored his oath and permitted organized crime and vice to operate without restraint.

Mr. Sculco owes his second election to the most disgusting kind of fraud, in which the very ballots of the people were defaced and the counting of them criminally falsified. Thanks to this kind of cheating, he won by 700 votes out of 110,000.

We hope the voters make sure this time that their verdict is not reversed after the polls have closed.

Judge Bauer and Mr. Sculco are both creatures of a political machine which is interested in other things besides justice under the law. They are not entitled to the votes of citizens who favor effective law enforcement and civic decency.

The President and The Budget

PRESIDENT Eisenhower is getting ready to use his considerable prestige with the American people in behalf of his budget recommendations, and we are pleased that he is. We think he has a good case.

The President has been taken to task by many politicians in Washington and by some newspaper commentators, including a couple who contribute to this page, for not being sufficiently aggressive in defense of the budget. The critics give the impression that they think the President should regard his budget as a sacred cow which he has a holy duty to keep from being touched.

Mr. Eisenhower has not taken that attitude. He let it be known from the start that he is not at all happy about a $72 billion budget. And both he and the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Humphrey, have said that they very much wish taxes could be reduced.

But, after careful study, they concluded that a budget of approximately this amount was necessary for the safety of the nation. And they sent it to Congress for final review and revision since Congress has the last word about spending and taxes.

* * *

NOW just what is wrong with the administration's position? Does it not make sense? Does it, in fact, not require considerable courage to take the hard political way of contrasted to any spending for defense and mutual [illegible] as opposed to the more popular way of cutting spending and taxes?

The heart of Mr. Eisenhower's case is that any realistic plan for reducing government expenditures substantially must include defense and security, for these are more than [illegible] per cent of the budget. And most of the rest of the budget, he points out, is composed of functions which the American people have [illegible] they regard as desirable — school building construction, farm crop subsidies, veterans' benefits, urban redevelopment, highways [illegible] interest.

The President is insisting that those who want to reduce this amount and cut taxes must specify precisely what it is that they propose to eliminate, since obviously something must be eliminated.

Mr. Eisenhower's position strikes us as being sound. We do not blame him in the least if he refuses to wax enthusiastic about a cut of such proportions. But we honor him for refusing to cave in before the emotional pressure being whipped up by the budget-cutters.

Merry-Go-Round—

Gov. Furcolo Proposes Loan Plan

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Foster Furcolo, dynamic young Governor of Massachusetts, paid a call on President Eisenhower last week.

He laid before Ike a plan for the federal government to set $3,000,000,000 aside from which the states could borrow at two per cent interest to build school buildings and various public works.

Mr. Pearson

"What the 48 states are up against, Mr. President," explained Democratic Governor Furcolo, "is the highest interest rate in years. We have to pay 4 or 4½ per cent on bonds to build schools, hospitals and highways.

"It's prohibitive. The result is that a lot of states just aren't going to build.

"However," continued the Governor of Massachusetts, "if the federal government set aside, $3,000,000,000 from which the states could borrow at two per cent, the banks would probably lower their interest rates."

Furcolo told Ike that he had queried the other state governors on the idea and about half seemed to favor the plan.

President Eisenhower, however, was noncommittal. He listened attentively, but made no comment.

Later the Massachusetts Governor tried the idea out on Speaker John McCormack of Boston, the Democratic House leader. He got much more favorable reaction.

Lyndon Chafes Dems

Democratic leaders made no effort to hide their irritation with Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the so-called Democratic leader of the Senate, for leaving Washington when the former President of the United States, the Democratic candidate for President and other top leaders of the party came to attend a money-raising dinner and confer on Democratic strategy.

In addition to being irked at Lyndon's boycott they learned that he is secretly grooming Sen. George Smathers of Florida to replace Paul Butler as Democratic chairman when Butler retires to run for the Senate from Indiana.

Smathers, one of the handsomest senators, sometimes referred to as a member of the "Lyndon Johnson charm school," is well remembered by Adlai Stevenson for the way he sat on his hands in Florida in 1952.

Smathers made not one speech for Stevenson, did not lift a finger in that election. Finally toward the end of the campaign he was asked to introduce Stevenson at a Democratic rally in Tampa, but refused — unless he were permitted to make a speech during his introduction explaining why he differed with Stevenson. In brief, he wanted to make a speech against Stevenson before Stevenson spoke.

This was rejected.

Smathers did come to Tampa and sat on the platform. When asked to take a bow he was greeted with long, loud and continuous boos.

This is the man Lyndon Johnson wants to push as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

NOTE — To atone for his past, Lyndon pushed Smathers into the post of money-raiser for Democratic senators last year. But Democratic leaders point out that Smathers' activities helped Lyndon's Senate friends, not the national ticket.

From Smoke-filled Rooms

When California Democratic committeeman Paul Ziffren introduced the resolution banning a right-to-work bill he told fellow Democrats: "A right-to-work bill has no more place in a civil rights bill than a right-to-live amendment has in the national defense appropriation." . . . Alabama's committeewoman Thomas urged that the segregationist questions be reconsidered at Washington because the press had been present at the San Francisco Democratic meetings, so delegates could not express themselves freely. Col. Jack Arvey, kingpin of Chicago Democrats, voiced Lyndon Johnson's earlier squawk that "Drew Pearson published the record of our closed-door sessions. How do you suppose Drew gets it?" Arvey asked.

It was no accident that the Southerners stayed home, almost en masse, from last week's $100-a-plate Democratic dinner. Senate leader Lyndon Johnson organized a "passive boycott" as a deliberate snub to the Democratic National Committee . . . He believes the committee is dominated by Northern liberals, but should be run by Southern congressional leaders — meaning himself primarily . . . Johnson personally led the boycott by going to Texas instead of the dinner. He passed the word to southern leaders to follow his example . . . Result: Only one Southern governor, North Carolina's Luther Hodges, showed up for what was also supposed to be a Democratic governors' conference . . . Even Tennessee's free-spending Gov. Frank Clement, who had agreed to sit on the stand, sent his regrets the last minute.

Squanderlust

From Washington—

Alger Hiss Writes a Book

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Alger Hiss, a free man who has served his sentence, is back in the news. At least he hopes he will be in the news because he has restated his defense in a book, "In the Court of Public Opinion," published by Alfred A. Knopf, which is an appeal to public opinion to reverse the verdict of the courts.

Mr. Drummond

Mr. Hiss felt that public opinion contributed to his conviction by the courts and he now evidently feels that public opinion can be appealed to alter the verdict.

This is a land of free speech and Mr. Hiss is certainly entitled to expound his case as often as he wishes. Whittaker Chambers took some 900 pages to tell his story and Mr. Hiss is not short of words, either.

I have read with interest Mr. Hiss' summation of his side of the argument, but I don't see how any reader of the book can accept the author's plea of innocence out of hand without at the same time reviewing all of the evidence which the government presented at the second trial and on Mr. Hiss' appeals. There have been miscarriages of justice in the past, but I doubt if many of them have been corrected by public opinion; they have more often been corrected by the courts themselves. Mr. Hiss exhausted the judicial process.

But Mr. Hiss is now, by choice, in the court of public opinion and he has nothing to lose.

Documents Taken

There is one aspect of Mr. Hiss' story which seems to me worth noting especially. You will, no doubt, recall how, at the time the Chambers-Hiss matter first became public, many people just couldn't believe that there would be pro-Communist people in the government who would be willing to turn over secret papers to a foreign power.

But now Mr. Hiss himself stresses that there must have been quite a few in the State Department from 1933 to 1937 and later who were willing to pass out classified documents to the Communists. He points to the Trade Agreements Division, the Far Eastern Division and other sensitive sources." He mentions that while Julian Wadleigh, a State Department employe, estimated he gave Mr. Chambers some 400 documents, this number of Chambers' testimony would reach to 1,000 to 2,500 documents.

Mr. Hiss writes at another point: "If 'Amerasia' (a private magazine) could so easily stuff its files with hundreds of State Department documents running back over the years, who knows but that they had other similar caches of State Department papers which might have been made available . . ."

Obviously Mr. Hiss is satisfied to leave the impression that the State Department was once a "soft touch" for document-obtainers. While this fact does not prove its innocence it shows that the problem of espionage was much more than many could imagine, that we came tardily to recognize the danger and deal with it.

But it has now been met with sustained alertness and there is no evidence that we are going to forget the lessons.

The federal government has completed its re-check of its who's personnel. This has been a painful but necessary process. Today the federal employe security program is centered almost entirely on new applicants.

The influence, membership and organization of the Communist party in the United States is at an all-time low. In his latest report to Congress, Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr. notes that the Communist leaders "admit that the Communist party has suffered such heavy organizational losses and its influence has declined to such a low point that the party finds itself in a critical situation."

This is due to two reasons. The Communists aren't fooling many people any more because the purposes and consequences of Communism have been so fully exposed; secondly, because the government's prosecutions under the security laws have taken effect.

Undoubtedly the Communists will keep trying to bore in. But the problem is now wholly manageable. The need is for alertness without hysteria.

Foreign Aid Program Key Item in Budget

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower and congressional leaders agree the United States needs friends in the cold war. There is not much agreement yet on how much it should spend to win and keep friends.

Mr. Lahr

On the second of his planned radio-TV appeals to the country Eisenhower will discuss, in the words of the White House, "Why mutual aid is so essential to the winning of the peace."

The administration's foreign aid program, now scaled down to less than four billion dollars, has been a prime target of the budget-cutting drive in Congress. It also has been the item most often mentioned in mail to Congress complaining about the size of the President's nearly 72 billion dollar budget.

Needs Fresh Support

So it looks as though Eisenhower will have to win fresh public support for the program if he wants to persuade Congress to vote something near the amount he is asking.

In his conference with congressional leaders of both parties Thursday the President placed much stress on this nation's need for friends and allies in the cold war with Russia. None of his listeners disagreed, though they were not ready to accept his program as the exact formula that must be followed for the next year.

Eisenhower also was reported to have described the foreign aid program as an investment in peace which actually should be viewed as an economy when set against possible alternatives. In this connection, he said it was cheaper for the United States to help other countries maintain armed forces than to put more Americans in uniform.

Presented Strong Case

A number of congressional leaders reported that the President presented a strong case. But none admitted being ready to change his mind.

Eisenhower formally reduced his foreign aid program by some 500 million dollars at Thursday's conference.

This 500 million dollar reduction was originally offered almost a month ago in a letter from the President to Speaker Sam Rayburn. It was part of a set of suggestions for cutting administration budget requests by $1,858,000,000. But Eisenhower indicated then that the sum of his proposed cuts would not trim more than about 600 million dollars from his overall 72 billion dollar spending budget.

The Lighter Side—

Marriage, Home and Family Youth Goals

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP)—Shhhh. Don't breathe a murmuring word of This. It might be too much for the professional alarmists.

You know what the younger set is turning to now? Marriage, home, and family. Honest statistics say so.

That's a trend that ought to confound those who habitually peer with alarm into the dark doings of American humanity. It's hard to see how anyone could read anything ominous into young folks' trending toward getting married and raising a family.

Except, perhaps, for those who worry about how we're going to feed the bumper crop of babies sure to come from the present bumper crop of babies. The baby boom is still on. The number of births in the United States has reached a new high in each of the last six years.

Birth Figures Way Up

The 1956 birth figure is 4,200,000. In 1940, it was 2,560,000.

The fact marriage is becoming increasingly popular among the younger set comes from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., an outfit which has no axes to grind on the subject except the ones that keep its statistics sharp.

The Metropolitan Life figures show that the median age for first marriages now stands at 23 years for men, 20 years for women. That is a decline in age by one and one-third years since World War II.

There are now one and one-half times as many married men under 25 years of age as there were in 1940. In more than half of the families which had a baby during 1955, the husband was under 30.

You can reach your own conclusions on the basis of that last statistic. The one which occurs to me is that being a pap is an estate conducive more to keeping a young fellow around home doing his papa's duties than to keeping him hanging around a street corner looking for trouble.

New Baby Birth Trend

The baby boom itself now is showing a new trend. That is in the direction of third and fourth additions to the family.

The boom was incidental to World War II and its aftermath, and according to the Metropolitan statisticians "the earlier phase was characterized by a sharp rise in first and second births." They add:

"More recently, the boom has been sustained by unusually large numbers of children born in established families. Last year there was a record total of about 1,300,000 third and fourth children born in our country. These babies comprised almost one-third of the total—a higher proportion than for any year since World War I."

No matter how you look at it, the family is quite an institution—and it seems to be getting more highly institutionalized by the minute.

Europe Goes American

By CLAIRE COX

LONDON (UP)—Europeans are becoming as American as apple pie.

A Briton, in fact, actually can get a malted like his mother used to make, at a London lunch counter. He also can order a cupacawfee, and get it, along with a sinker to dunk in the brew.

(A sinker, as any Englishman knows, is a doughnut.)

Rock'n'roll has swept the continent, along with the duck-tailed haircuts that go with it.

The French eat something they call "lunch." The plural is "lunches". Quite frequently the mid-day meal is a "sandwich" (open-face sandwiches) or a "snack."

French music fans like to listen to American ballads they call "slows." One of the most frequent types of crime in Paris is a "hold-up." It often is committed on "weekends."

The British go in for "gimmicks" in a big way, while the West Germans prefer "gags."

What used to be called a "lied" in West Germany frequently is known as a "song" today.

West Germans refer to youngsters as "teen-agers," and often call a government investigation a "hearing," as in congressional hearing. Their radio stations feature rock'n'roll music, usually sung in German, except for key phrases, such as "rock that Susie. Rock."

Hotdog, striptease and parking have become international words, along with campaign. A chromium-trimmed counter restaurant off London's Piccadilly Circus features ham and eggs, wimpy cheeseburgers and something called a "Freddie," a "cold frankfurter with a pickled cucumber."

The Germans love it. So do the British. In fact, many Britons have abandoned tea in favor of American-style coffee. An American tea drinker sometimes has a difficult time getting the traditional British national drink with his dinner dessert.

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower, explaining that his recent golfing vacation at Augusta, Ga., helped in throwing off his lingering cold and cough:

"I personally think for the kind of difficulty I had that the sun is the only answer."

WASHINGTON — Special presidential envoy James P. Richards, on returning from a 39-day tour of the Middle East:

"I was surprised at the confidence of the governments and people in that area as to the high moral purposes of what the United States is trying to do."

ON THE BALL

By ALLEN KLINE

Mitnick Leading Valley Hurler

There's a suspicion that Bill Mitnick, of the Monessen Ozarks, has developed into the Mon Valley League's finest hurler. He already has two wins to his credit. In ten and two-thirds innings, he has permitted one run and five hits while fanning no less than 22 . . . Speaking of the Ozarks, they tied a record at Ninth Street Park the other night by stroking five home runs against Van Voorhis . . . Clarence Churn, who was optioned this week by the Pirates to Hollywood in the Pacific Coast League, started his professional baseball career with the Uniontown Coal Barons. He lived for a time in that community and his wife is from there.

* * *

Mon Valley League officials are wondering now if they acted hastily in admitting West Newton to the 1957 campaign. The WN boys have taken two terrible beatings in as many league outings. However they have some talented fellows on their roster and should gain some respectability before long . . . There's a rumor that Duquesne University has stepped up its basketball recruiting program again and will import some prized freshman next season . . . Penn State, a traditional baseball power, has competed in the NCAA, District Two, playoffs five times since 1949.

Kadis Gains in Bowling Marathon

Those two Uniontown bowlers who set a marathon record last week by rolling more than 62 hours also netted $70 for the Dick Kadis fund. Spectators kicked in to the Kadis Kitty during the record-breaking performance . . . Barry Trew, son of the Bentleyville sportsman and a student at Washington-Jefferson College, was again named to the All-American intercollegiate rifle team by the National Rifle Association . . . Mickey Bitsko, a sturdy athlete at Fallowfield Junior High, just missed serious injury in a track and field meet the other day when struck by a carelessly thrown discus. A spectator deflected the discus but Bitsko still suffered a severe slash under his eye which required hospital treatment . . . Incidentally Bitsko is a brother of Charleroi High standout Myron Pottios.

The Monessen Ozarks are still the best-dressed team in the Mon Valley League. They have home-and-away uniforms . . . By the way, Ozark officials have ordered new togs for Fuzzy Anderson, their 6-6 pitcher. They couldn't find any of the current uniforms big enough to fit him . . . Sponsors of Little League teams here shelled out $250 to get the ball rolling some years back, not $50 as was mistakenly reported through a typographical error . . . George Nicksich, the city's Recreation Director, has reluctantly given up his duties to begin his new business. Originally he had hoped to stay on the job until the end of the month, but that simply wasn't possible.

Do as I Say, Not as I Do!

A Junior High athlete at a district school wearing a brand new jacket was asked where the award came from. "I've been told to say I don't know a thing about it," he replied. The youngster attends a school whose principal participated in the decision which took similar awards from Rostraver boys . . . Actually most of the Rostraver athletes have taken the incident graciously. They'll be toasted by their parents tomorrow night in the Webster Fire Hall and that should salve some of the hurt. The quicker the whole thing is forgotten, the better it will be for everyone . . . The three Monessen members of the Charleroi team in the Mon Valley Baseball League are off to a great start. Walt Cieply, Dean Cheesebrough and Nick Mahalko have all won starting assignments.

Boxing Business Runs Into a Real Lull

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Gaspar Ortega and Isaac Logart, two scrappers from south of the border, do a television tango at Syracuse tonight and the best that can be said is that it's reminiscent of the old chestnut about the crooked crap game.

That's the one, you'll remember, where the visitor was told that the game was fixed. To which he replied: "I know, but it's the only game in town."

Well, this is the only fight in any town at the moment.

From the heavyweight division practically all the way down boxing is completely becalmed.

Miffed With IBC

Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and his manager, Cus D'Amato, are miffed at the International Boxing Club and have taken their dishes and gone home. There is talk that Patterson may fight abroad and the only thing I would move is that there really is a Floyd Patterson.

The light heavyweights such as they are, currently are making time while Archie Moore tries to decide whether to be a heavyweight, defend his title by paring off umpteen pounds or chuck the whole business and spend the rest of his life eating fried chicken.

In the interim, the "new" Sugar Ray Robinson—picture of humility and a chaste soul who loves everybody—has proved to be the 'old" Robinson in spades. Mr. Sweetness and Light is delivering as artfully as ever to get not only the cream but most of the bottle in a defense against Carmen Basilio, he has both the middleweight and welterweight divisions tied in a knot which would have knocked out Gordian.

Ray Of Hope

Among the lightweights, where the champion is a misty figure named Joe Brown, there is a ray of hope. If anybody cares, he'll fight Orlando Zulueta "sometime in June." And nothing can be done about the vacant featherweight title until Cherif Hamia visits his Algerian relatives and decides when he'll have time to box Hogan (Kid) Bassey for the dust-gathering crown.

Which leaves us with Ortega and Logart. They hope the winner meets Basilio, unless he gets a shot at Robinson, but Basilio doesn't know whether he'll get that chance and, if so, whether he'll vacate the welter crown and so the winner in that case would fight Tony De Marco, who might get the first shot at Carmen anyhow, unless Ray decides what to do.

And it's that—just that clear!

The sparrow, one of the fiercest animal on earth in attack and devour almost any animal up to twice its own weight in meat every three hours.

Monessen Ozarks Travel to West Newton Tonight

Monessen's undefeated Ozarks will go to West Newton this evening for a Mon Valley Baseball League encounter.

The Ozarks have already handled Donora and Van Voorhis so far this season to get off to their finest start in years.

MHS Teams Head Today For Charleroi

Two Monessen High sports teams will invade Charleroi today for 3 p. m. contests.

Coach Antoinette Valentine's undefeated Greyhound tennis team will be after its fifth straight win at the expense of the Cougar netters.

A win for the Monessen boys will assure them at least a tie for first in the final Section 4 tennis standings.

Also traveling to Charleroi will be the MHS baseballers. Here the situation is completely reversed.

The host nine is an odds-on favorite to win and thereby cinch a tie for first in the final Section 17 baseball standings.

The Charlerotans have seven straight wins to their credit including a previous decision over the hapless Hounds who are currently caught in a seven game losing streak.

Townsend, Danser Speak at Annual All-Sports Banquet

Two former Monessen High sports figures returned last night to reminisce and offer advice during annual all-sports banquet at the MHS Cafeteria.

S. S. Townsend, who organized the school's first basketball team back in 1915, and Gene Danser, a tackle standout in the late forties, shared the speaker's stand. Both of them delighted the capacity crowd of athletes and friends.

Townsend recalled the early days of sports at MHS. He interspersed his talk with names which brought back fond memories to the oldsters present.

Completing his 42nd year in sports, Townsend will retire at the conclusion of this school year as principal-coach at West Newton.

During his days at Monessen, both his football and basketball teams enjoyed tremendous success.

My School

"Since I started my vocational career here, I will always consider Monessen High as my school," said Townsend.

The veteran coach then illustrated his coaching philosphy by reporting several amusing incidents.

Danser, who starred at Penn State after graduating from Monessen High, really raised some eyebrows with his soft-spoken but inspiring talk.

Now coach at Mars High, Danser cautioned the MHS athletes that "the world doesn't owe you a living."

Said Danser:

"In victory or defeat, the important thing is to give your best. Even in defeat there is satisfaction if you have played your best."

Other Speakers

Other speakers limited their remarks to a few minutes. They included Dr. Joseph Pallone, superintendent of schools; Alfred Hazelbaker, Junior High principal; Henry Furio, senior high principal, Mayor Hugo Parente; John Lancas, president of the school board; Nick Cullen, chairman of the Athletic Committee; and David Weiss, school solicitor.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of jackets. As usual, the Movie Club sponsored the awards for all MHS senior letterwinners.

Gene Cipriani made the awards in behalf of the Movie Club.

Dr. Joseph Dudas, a member of the School Board, served as toastmaster.

During the evening, the many friends of the MHS sports program were introduced as well as the coaching staff.

Logart Takes on Ortega in TV Bout Tonight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP) — Contenders Isaac Logart of Cuba and Gaspar Ortega of Mexico engage in a 12-round 'rubber match' tonight for a probable shot at the welterweight crown.

Although each won a previous meeting, Logart is favored at 11-5 to beat Yanks Ortega, a long-range sharpshooter, this time at the Syracuse War Memorial Auditorium.

Their slam-bang bout will be televised and broadcast nationally by NBC.

The winner will be in a position to challenge champion Carmen Basilio of nearby Chittenango, N.Y., for the 147-pound crown. Or he will be geared to fight top-ranked ex-champion Tony De Marco for the vacant crown in case Basilio wins the middleweight championship from Sugar Ray Robinson on September. Basilio could not hold two.

In the betting De Marco is No. 1, Ortega No. 2 and Logart No. 3, but it's unlikely De Marco could get another shot at Basilio, who already knocked him out twice in title bouts.

In their two previous encounters Logart 21, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Ortega 21, at Madison Square Garden in March 16, 1956. Ortega turned the tables and won a 10-round verdict at Boston, Oct. 17.

Monongahela Hi Raps Bellmar By 10 to 2 Score

Monongahela High pushed over five unearned runs in the first inning, then coasted to an easy 10-2 victory over Bellmar yesterday in Section 17 baseball action.

The victory kept the Wildcats faint hopes alive of overtaking the league-leading Charleroians.

The visiting Wildcats hammered over three more runs in the second inning to wrap up the contest in a hurry.

Fred Cox clouted a tremendous 360 foot homer in the fourth inning to feature the Monongahela offense.

George Fabin chipped in with a triple while George Voelker and George Peters each had doubles.

Bellmar's only runs came across in the fifth inning when Bob Beggs singled after two walks and an error loaded the bases.

Pirates Begin Series Tonight With Phillies

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The last-place Pittsburgh Pirates, who dropped eight of nine games to western teams in their first home stand, open a four-game series with the Philadelphia Phillies tonight.

Ronnie Kline, trying for his first victory after three defeats, will take the mound for the Pirates. His scheduled opponent was Jack Sanford, who has won three and hasn't been beaten yet.

The series includes an afternoon game Saturday and a doubleheader Sunday. It will close the Bucs' home stand. After the Sunday games, the Bucs will leave for their first western trip and won't return until May 28 when they start a 23-game home stand.

The skidding Pirates have been a dismal club on their home grounds. They have been lacking in the powtr department and their defense has been poor.

Pittsburgh committed 16 errors against the western clubs and these contributed 19 unearned runs to the opposition.

Mathieu, Zoretich Win MHS Awards

Zoretich won special awards at the Monessen High sports banquet last night.

So did football coach Armand Niccolai.

Mathieu was the 1957 winner of the annual Weiss Award, which goes to the all-around senior athlete.

Zoretich won the newly-created McKosky Memorial Award as the letterman judged the top all-around school citizen.

Niccolai's trophy was instigated by his football players. It carried the inscription.

"Our Coach of the Year — Armand Niccolai."

Charleroi Gets Tourney Bid Again

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Charleroi, Overbrook, Chester and Portage high schools will compete in the annual Cambria County War Memorial Arena Invitational Basketball Tournament next Dec. 27 and 28, it was announced today.

Charleroi, which had a record of 24-2 last season, will be the defending champion.

LaMotta Is in Trouble Again

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—Former middleweight champion Jake LaMotta is in trouble again — this time on traffic charges.

The square-jawed pugilist was charged with failing to yield the right-of-way in a minor automobile accident here Thursday when he swung his car in front of another auto while attempting to make a left turn.

His pretty 18-year-old companion, Renee Childrey, formerly of Philadelphia, suffered a bruised arm when she was thrown from LaMotta's big convertible.

LaMotta is currently fighting a conviction on charges that he permitted a 14-year-old prostitute to solicit her customers in his Miami Beach bar. He has appealed the six-month jail sentence and a $500 fine.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Stance Important

To acquire a sound and effective golf swing, position the feet properly at address — that is, acquire proper stance position.

I favor a square stance for wood shots and longer irons, changing to a slightly open stance for the shorter irons and less-than-full shots. A square stance is where the toes of both feet are even with the intended line of flight. In the open stance, the right foot is advanced a bit forward of the line. This stance tends to restrict body turn. On all stances, the toes should be turned slightly outward.

Due to anatomical differences and swing characteristics, certain players may benefit from slight variations of stance. But I have never seen a really good player whose stance varies greatly from the accepted standards.

For the drive and other long shots, the feet should be about as far apart as the shoulders are wide. For the shorter shots, the gap is narrowed until, for short chips and the like, the heels are only an inch or two apart.

Remember that if the stance is too wide there will be too much restriction of body turn; if it is too narrow, it won't provide b a l-ance.

Movie Club Sets Cage Tourney

Altoona, Clairton, Turtle Creek Will Join Monessen in Holiday Cage Show

The four-team field for the first annual Monessen Movie Club Holiday Basketball Tournament next December 27 and 28 was completed today.

Tournament Director Gene Cipriani discosed that these three schools have agreed to join host Monessen in the show: Altoona, Clairton and Turtle Creek.

Pairings will be announced later. The tourney will be staged in the form of two double-headers on successive nights.

"As far as we can determine, all four of the tournament teams will have excellent clubs next season," pointed out Cipriani. "They were selected after a careful screening."

Real Contender

Clairton, in particular, promises to develop into a real WPIAL contender. The past season the Bears were comprised entirely of juniors and sophomores.

The word is out that Clairton will be the team to beat in tough Section 6 during the 1957-58 campaign.

After inviting Clairton, the Movie Club officials set out to get Turtle Creek.

The Creekers also played with an undergrad squad last season. Reportedly TC expects its finest quint in years.

Prize Catch

Altoona is always a prize tourney catch. Three lettermen return from the current team.

"Altoona always has a strong entry and we aren't worried about them," said Cipriani.

Happily host Monessen figures to have a pretty good club too, even though graduation wiped out most of last year's starters. A good Jayvee team is expected to move up to varsity status without trouble.

Hundley Begins His Army Duty

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UP)—Hot Rod Hundley, West Virginia University All - America basketball star, was inducted into the Army Thursday for a two-year hitch.

Hundley did not disclose until two days ago that he had received an induction notice. He had sought unsuccessfully to have the induction date delayed because of a knee injury.

Hundley was chosen by Cincinnati in the National Basketball Association draft and was then traded to Minneapolis in a five-player deal. Minneapolis officials said they were dismayed at the news of his induction.

Roy Sievers Turning out to Be 'One-Man Offense' for Senators

By FRED DOWN

The lowly Washington Senators can't claim many distinctions but they've got the closest thing to a "one-man offense" in slugger Roy Sievers.

A rugged native of St. Louis, Mo., the 30-year-old outfielder is belting away at a .330-clip and leads the American League with 24 runs batted in. He blasted his sixth home run of the season Thursday and knocked in three runs as the Senators beat the Detroit Tigers, 8-5, and presented Cookie Lafagetto with his first victory as a major league manager.

The Senators, ending a 10-game losing streak that began under former manager Charley Dressen April 28, also had a pitcher go nine innings and win for the first time this year. Camilo Pascual was the "man of distinction," despite the fact he yielded 11 hits and walked two batters.

"Retread" Fans Nine

Jim Wilson, 35-year-old "retread" from the National League, struck out nine and hurled a five-hitter to give the Chicago White Sox a 2-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the only other big league game Thursday. The win snapped the White Sox' five-game losing streak and put them back into a tie for the AL lead with the New York Yankees.

Sievers, who has knocked in more than 25 per cent of the 89 runs the Senators have scored in 23 games this year, hammered a three-run homer off Frank Lary in the third inning to give the Nats a 3-1 lead and led off a two-run ninth inning rally with a double. Jim Lemon followed with a 425-foot triple and scored moments later on Lew Berberet's single.

Lary Suffers Third Loss

Lary, the league's leading winner with 21 victories last season, suffered his third defeat compared with two victories. Lary, 3-1 against Washington last year, yielded nine hits and five earned runs in six innings.

Wilson, always a fine spring pitcher, snapped the White Sox' losing streak with a flourish as he prevented red - hot Ted Williams from getting the ball out of the infield in four tries. Williams, who went into the game hitting .474 and who had hit three home runs in Wednesday's 4-1 victory over Chicago, popped up, grounded out twice and struck out.

Dean Stone, acquired by the Red Sox from the Senators in a recent trade, suffered his second straight loss for the Bosox. The game was halted three times for a total of one hour and 23 minutes by rain.

Bryn Mawr Is Bowling Champ

Bryn Mawr won the Ladies League bowling title yesterday by finishing first in a three team roll-off with Cedar Crest and Vassar.

Bryn Mawr spilled 1809 pins during the match. Vassar knocked down 1780 while Cedar Creso accounted for 1685.

Members of the winning team were Helen Polock, Betty Tennant, Lois O'Neil, Julia Malush, Irene Bost, Dorothy Gido, and Capt. Carrie Palm.

The champions will be honored at their annual banquet to be held at Twin Coaches next Tuesday at 6 p. m.

Honor Bowling Champs at Fete

The champion Leinbergers were honored last night at the annual banquet of the Open Hearth Pit League.

City Firemen Euchre Champs

Monessen Fire Co. Number 1 is the Mon Valley euchre champion.

The city players received their title trophy on Sunday during the league's annual banquet. Included in the award was a $50 cash prize.

Capt. Scoop Amatangelo accepted the trophy in behalf of the Monessen team.

Two teams from Belle Vernon—Moose and Legion — divided $20 second place money.

A roast beef dinner featured the banquet at the Firemen's Club, attracting 190 persons. Ches Morasco, of Belle Vernon Legion, acted as toastmaster.

Forbes Field Easy To Pitch in—Friend

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A pitcher can get away with more bad pitches at Forbes Field than at any other National League Park, Bob Friend mused today.

The Pirate righthander relaxed in the dugout and pointed to the center field fence more than 450 feet away.

"You can make mistakes here and still get by even if you're hit for 400 feet," he said. "At any other ball park that means trouble."

Ebbets Field is a challenge to a pitcher, Friend believes.

"First of all you face a power lineup when you meet the Dodgers. Many balls hit against the scoreboard for safeties would be big outs at Forbes Field. But I've had pretty good luck there."

Homers Beat Him

A few weeks ago Friend, who beat the Dodgers seven times the last two seasons, retired the first 11 batters to face him at Ebbets Field. But he was tagged for back-to-back homers by Duke Snider and Carl Furillo and lost although he allowed only four hits in seven innings.

"Crosley Field is troublesome, too," Friend said. "Right center is about 390 feet from home plate but its 440 feet at Forbes Field. And the Redlegs also have a power lineup to throw at you."

The short right field at the Polo Grounds is uppermost in Friend's mind when he faces the Giants.

"I must keep my curve away from the batters. Can't use much change of pace there and must be careful about keeping the ball down."

The symmetry of Milwaukee County Stadium appeals to the economist - trained mind of the Purdue graduate.

"It's a nice park to pitch in. For some reason the ball does not carry as it does in other parks," Friend said.

"Wrigley Field is a fine park but you must be careful—the ball can jump out—it's about 350 feet along each line. Then once in a while the wind swoops through."

The short right field at busch Stadium can disturb pitchers, but Friend said the screen erected two years ago cuts down on extra base hits.

"A homer must go over the roof now, but there are some Cardinals who can smack 'em there."

Connie Mack Stadium makes Friend shudder.

"Just mention those Phils and I think of Richie Ashburn," he said. "He is my problem hitter. He seems to hit anything I throw. I retired the first 13 batters last month, then Ashburn came up. He seems to hit anything I throw. I retired the first 13 batters last month, then Ashburn came up. He came through with one of those spray hits of his.

King Saud Is 'Fed Up' With Egyptian Alliance; Wants Ties with West

King Saud of Saudi Arabia is "fed up" with his alliance with Egypt and anxious to forge closer ties with pro-Western Iraq and Jordan, Baghdad dispatches reported today.

Saud arrives in Baghdad Saturday for a state visit with King Feisal. Persistent reports said they would be joined next week by Feisal's cousin, King Hussein of Jordan.

A fundamental change in Arab politics appeared to be in the making with Saudi Arabia possibly moving closer to the Baghdad Pact.

Egyptian reports said President Camille Chamoun of pro-Western Lebanon also may go to Baghdad for talks with the Arab monarchs.

The three kings would be expected to discuss the intrigues of Egyptian and Syrian quarters against them and the threat of Communist infiltration in the Middle East.

They were reported anxious to avoid an open split in the Arab world against the "threat" of Israeli aggression. But Iraq and Jordan have been steady targets of Egyptian propaganda, and last week Saud uncovered an assassination plot against him involving the Egyptian military attache in Saudi Arabia.

The Israel Radio "Kol Yisrael" quoted Beirut sources as saying the Egyptian-Syrian axis does not regard the defeat in Jordan as final and is preparing a "series of assassinations" there.

The Israeli broadcast accused Syrian intelligence of planning to kill royalist politicians in Jordan including Bahjat Talhouni, director of Hussein's cabinet, and Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Samir Rifai.

In Jerusalem, U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was holding his second round of talks with Premier David Ben-Gurion today in hopes of eventually reaching a Middle East peace settlement.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Israel had decided to call off its plans to test the Egyptian blockade of Israeli shipping through the Suez Canal during Hammarskjold's visit.

State GOP Move to Abolish Welfare Dept.

HARRISBURG (UP) — Republican legislative leaders, who have tangled frequently with Welfare Secretary Harry Shapiro over appropriations, have moved to abolish the state Welfare Department.

The proposal, a plank in the GOP legislative program, was introduced Thursday by House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) and Rep. Edwin E. Lippincott (R-Delaware).

The bill would transfer all present Welfare Department functions to the Public Assistance, Justice and Health departments. The name of the Public Assistance Department would be changed to the Department of Public Assistance and Welfare.

The change, if enacted, would become effective June 1.

Democratic House members, meanwhile, proposed a batch of other governmental reorganizations, including proposals to eliminate the offices of state treasurer and internal affairs secretary.

The others would:

—Vacate memberships of some 24 various state boards and commissions if members miss three consecutive meetings without just cause.

—Create an administration secretary to head administrative management in the governor's office.

—Form a migrant farm labor commission in the Labor and Industry Department.

—Abolish the state Forest Commission and the Flood Control Commission.

—Form a Natural Resources Advisory Council in the governor's office and transfer the state Planning Board to the office.

Infantry Feet Are Honored By Chiropodists

WASHINGTON (UP) — Eight thousand chiropodists today honored the U.S. infantryman's tired aching feet.

Officials of the American Foot Health Foundation called at the Pentagon to present the Army with the foundation's annual foot health award — a winged bronze foot.

Emblazoned across the almost life-size foot were the words:

"Honoring the American infantryman for distinguishing the human foot as man's most indispensable form of locomotion."

"The foundation is privileged to salute on this occasion the Army's recognition of the fact when evaluating this marvel of human engineering that, in the final analysis, nothing can replace a well cared for pair of feet."

Harmony Short Lines Drivers In Vote Today

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Drivers for the Harmony Short Lines vote today on a new contract offer by the bus firm.

The balloting takes place at New Kensington in the morning and Pittsburgh in the evening.

Federal mediator Martin Swauger announced the offer Thursday after meeting with negotiators for the company and Division 1067, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes. He said the company had requested terms of the offer not be divulged until after the voting.

The 250 drivers for the firm, which serves communities north of Pittsburgh to Meadville and in the Allegheny Valley, have remained on the job under a 10-day contract extension which expires at midnight.

Navy May Buy New Castle Property

WASHINGTON (UP) — Rep. Frank Clark (D-Pa.) said Thursday the Navy is seeking to purchase property it now rents near New Castle, Pa., as a Marine Corps Reserve training center.

Clark, Bessemer, Pa., said the Navy wants to buy the property for $59,700. He said it pays an annual rental of $9,408 and estimates the cost of an equivalent new building at $246,244.

The purchase would have to be approved by the House Armed Services Committee. Clark said he is helping obtain such approval.

Father Drowns In Attempt to Save His Son

GRUNDY, Va. (UP)—A father attempting to rescue his son from the waters of the Levisa River drowned with the boy Thursday. The girl the son had playfully pushed into the water, touching off the tragedy, was revived with artificial respiration.

The victims were identified as David Blankenship, 34, and his son, Thurman, 14, of nearby Harman, Va.

Police said the two were fishing along the river when Lydia Endicott, 14, and Bertha Mullins, 14, began wading nearby. Young Blankenship playfully pushed Lydia into the water and then fell in himself. When David got into water over his head, the boy's father dived in to save him.

Keystone Shortway Tied Up

HARRISBURG (UP) — State Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler said today data on two proposed routes for the Keystone Shortway was still tied up in the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads in Washington with no early decision in sight.

Information on the original 300 million dollar, 291 mile route from Sharon to Stroudsburg was submitted to the government agency last January. The cost study for an alternate route from Sharon to Port Jervis, N.Y., 36 miles northeast of Stroudsburg, was submitted last month at the federal agency's request.

Lawler said "the alternate route to Port Jervis definitely will not serve Pennsylvania as well as the Sharon - Stroudsburg road...Our position on that question is supported by an engineering survey."

"Of course the alternate route would be acceptable to us but we really have nothing to say about it," he said. "We just do all the work and they sit in Washington and make the decisions," he said.

Lawler said there was a possibility branches of the road would be built to both Stroudsburg and Port Jervis. The latter terminus would add an estimated 12 million dollars to the total cost of the project of which 90 per cent will be borne by the government.

Denies Charges

He said charges by opponents that the shortway would bankrupt the Port of Philadelphia and the Pennsylvania Turnpike were contradicted by engineering surveys.

"The study indicated we would be lucky to have the shortway for an alternate when the turnpike is freed," he said. "The turnpike simply would not be able to handle all the traffic it would get."

He also pointed out that following approval of the shortway route by the Bureau of Public Roads it would require an estimated 10 to 12 years to complete the new road, and that by the time it was completed a considerable portion of the turnpike bonds should be paid off.

"There is also the possibility that the Bureau of Public Roads may reimburse the state for any cuts in revenue suffered by the turnpike as the result of the shortway construction," he said.

The Sharon - Stroudsburg route was slated by the Highways Department to traverse the distance between the two points on as nearly a straight line as the terrain will permit. It would cross 12 counties in its path, veering just north of Lock Haven and to the south of Williamsport.

Two American Youths Leave Cuban Rebels

GUANTANAMO NAVAL BASE, Cuba (UP)—Two American youths said today they had no regrets about their 10 - week adventure with the rebel forces of Fidel Castro in the rugged Sierra Maestra Mountains.

Michael Garvey, 15, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Victor J. Buehlam, 17, of Norfolk, Va., said they were glad to be home with their parents but would miss the mountains and their rebel friends.

They said the third youth who went with them, Charles Ryan, 20, had no intention of returning.

Fathers of the three are stationed with the U.S. Navy here.

Garvey and Buehlman apparently will face no official punishment, either from American or Cuban authorities, for their escapade. They said they came back because of their ages and wanted to finish school.

Buehlman, who dropped from 207 to 180 pounds on a diet of boiled bananas in the mountains, said the three had never met Castro until they went into the mountains.

They said they joined the rebels because they believed "Cuba should be free."

State Senate To Be Honored

HARRISBURG (UP)—State Sen. Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong) will receive the Pennsylvania Dental Society's 1957 annual award for "outstanding contributions to the dental profession" at the society's annual convention here May 24.

Pechan, a member of the Senate since 1949, and Republican whip during the last two legislative sessions, is a life-long resident of Ford City, where he has been active in local civic and fraternal affairs.

He was termed by the society "the father of fluoridation" in the state, for his long advocacy of water supply fluoridation to help reduce tooth decay. His home community was the first in Pennsylvania to add the chemical to its water supply.

Psychiatrist Is Credited with Solving Burglary

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UP) — A psychiatrist has solved a burglary case by discovering that one of his patients suffered from a guilty conscience, police said today.

Dr. Kurt Fantl recently told officers that the patient admitted under treatment that he was worried because he had burglarized the home of Harlan Huff last Nov. 30 of $796.

The doctor recommended that the worried patient pay back the money and offered to act as intermediary. Fantl sent Huff a cashier's check for the amount and the patient immediately felt "like a million dollars."

Fantl told police he coudn't disclose the patient's name because of ethical grounds. However, officers consulted Huff and he said he didn't want to prosecute because he got his money back.

The doctor put his patient's case history in the "cured file" and police termed the burglary solved.

37 Die in Plane Crash

MADRID (UP)—Salvage crews worked until dawn today clearing bodies from the wreckage of a Spanish airliner that carried 37 persons to their deaths in a crash Thursday night.

It was the worst accident in Spanish aviation history.

The plane, a two-engine Bristol converted from freight to passenger use, plunged into a fieldt hree miles from Barajas Airport. All 32 passengers and five crew members were killed. None were Americans.

A girl sprayed with burning gasoline from the crash while playing near a farmhouse was reported satisfactory condition this morning.

The plane had been forced to remain in the air for a while after its arrival from Santiago while other planes landed ahead. When it finally was called in the plane started to approach the field but burst into flames and crashed before reaching the runway.

Bernard Sarra, of Fayette City, was elected treasurer; Clifford Breakwell, North Belle Vernon, financial secretary and J. E. Kuhn, Belle Vernon, recording secretary.

The treasurer's term is one year and each of the secretary terms is for four years.

The proposed budget was adopted. Expenditures will total $632,608.81 and the Joint Board will receive $41,225 leaving the amount of $591,353.81 to be pro-rated among the four component boards. The budget was adopted by all four component boards.

Blandon Bulger conducted the meeting which was attended by all members of the North Belle Vernon Board, Joseph Hoffman, Lewis Gilliland, Gerald Stanley and J. E. Kuhn, Belle Vernon; John Kasuda, Bulger and Koslosky, Washington Township and from Fayette City, James Hamer, George Hancock, Sarra and Charles Lakel.

Bellmarette Joint School Supervising Principal Robert Van Bremen, Elementary Supervisor Joseph Brisbane and Solicitor John Costello attended.

Secretary Reports

Kuhn gave the routine secretary's reports and the special building committee reports. He explained the base bids for the new additions at Bellmar High School and Marion Junior High School. Solicitor Costello reported that all necessary deeds, abstracts and records are now filed with the State School Building Authority. Kuhn reported that approval for both projects was received from Peoples Natural Gas Co. and stated that the pre-final plans for Marion have been checked by the authority and the Bellmar plans are now being processed.

Architect C. C. Compton set Aug. 1, 1958 as the completion date for both projects.

VanBremen and Stanley reporting for the transportation committee stated that a meeting is being arranged with Vesely's and the Fayette County School office to draw up a new contract.

Dr. Underwood reported for the athletics and activities committee that all bids were checked and the board approved splitting the contract between A. W. Dice and Monessen Sport Shop.

Kuhn reported that bids were received for paints and the board awarded the contract to the Paint and Wallpaper Store.

Supply chairman Natalini recommended that William G. Johnson be awarded the general supplies bid with the provision that they be properly packed and be delivered on time or the contract will be forfeited. This was approved. Approval was given the awarding of the janitorial supplies to eight different companies, the medical supplies to A. J. Ackerman of Conneaut Lake and the shop supplies to Brodhead-Garrett.

New Teacher Signed

Kuhn reported for a personnel and finance committee that a temporary professional contract was signed with Eleanor Babich, of Homer City, a commercial teacher. This committee was authorized to contract for secondary teachers without a meeting of the board. Approval of a tenure contract with Mrs. Margaret Ulerich as a teacher in the Vernon Junior High School for the 1957-58 school term was voted.

The board approved the first week of July as a vacation for all regular janitors and the sum of $1.40 per hour as the salary for all custodians doing summer work.

VanBremen was authorized to select a teacher for additional kindergarten classes at Marion because of the registration of 80 pupils for this class next year. He will also see about a classroom and furnishings.

The finance committee also agreed on the fee of the solicitor for work on the building projects.

The Joint Board declined to supply a uniform for a police guard to be provided by the North Belle Vernon borough council for the crossing on the Express Highway.

Financial Secretary Clifford Breakwell gave the financial report and bills were ordered paid.

Fats Have no Relationship to Blood Clots

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—To the critical question (for all of us) of what relationship fats in the diet have to any tendency of the blood to clot in the arteries and veins, the newest scientific answer is: None.

But that is not so much reassuring as confusing. Previous experiments, no less precise and exacting, have shown that high-fats meals definitely increase the blood's ability to coagulate or clot.

The question is critical because all arteries seem to "harden" if their owners live long enough. When these vital channels are thus being made smaller and smaller in bore, any increase in blood coagulability could lead to a blocking clot causing a heart attack or a "stroke."

No Definite Answer

The newest answer to the critical question indicates that science is not yet able to answer it with finality. This answer was provided by two scientists working in the University of Cape Town, South Africa.

They "fasted" convalescent hospital patients. First thing of a morning, they took blood samples from all, and then gave low-fat breakfasts to some and high-fats breakfasts to others. Periodically during the day they took more blood samples from all.

All these samples were analyzed individually, comparatively, and statistically for coagulability by not one chemical test but by many.

The overall result was to show that neither low-fat nor high-fats breakasts had materially changed coagulability.

Seemed Disturbed

The scientists, Drs. C. Merskey and H. L. Nossel, seemed disturbed that their results had "failed to confirm" the opposite findings of a number of scientists, including Dr. Ancel Keys of the University of Minnesota.

In their report to the international technical journal, "The Lancet", they pointed out that one scientific colleague, Dr. J. R. O'Brien, "has gone so far as to say 'that a fatty meal accelerates blood coagulation is now established.' "

They acknowledged that other investigators had experimented with healthy people and they had experimented with convalescents. But the illnesses of their subjects were entirely without connection "with abnormal coagulation or a bleeding state." They added: "It would even be argued that it is more important to know whether fat accelerates coagulation in people who are sick than whether it does so in those who are well."

Explain Contradiction

They explained the contradiction between their results and those or similar experiments by pointing to "the uncontrolled variables in these coagulation tests." Very few have emphasized them, and they should be emphasized. In addition to the "variables" of laboratory conditions, "the time of the day, the weather, the taking of a meal as distinct from its fat content, and other variables too numerous to mention" might account for results which seem to be scientifically accurate but aren't.

Of course, these variables could have upset their experiments without their knowing about it, as well as it could have upset those of the scientists whose results were the opposite of theirs.

Collective Farms in Yugoslavia Refined

BELGRADE (UP)—Yugoslavia shocked its Communist colleagues in 1953 by renouncing farm collectivization. Now it is pursuing the same end with more refined—and successful—means.

Private farm ownership in Yugoslavia still accounts for most arable land. The government's postwar attempts to make Communism an immediate fact of life by expropriating the peasants was almost disastrous and the peculiar Yugoslav brand of Communism backtracked to find a better way of reaching the goal. Today things proceed smoothly through a form of "voluntary cooperatives" which inevitably will see the disappearance of the small landowner—but without force, pressure or Communist decrees.

An agrarian country so poorly developed it has never been able to feed itself although its resources are rich, Yugoslavia under Tito has assumed the task of modernizing agriculture while transforming the nation into an industrial power.

The industrialization program prevented any large farm modernization until recently. Now, says Milorad Gojkovic, chief deputy in the Agriculture Ministry, Yugoslavia is trying to utilize her resources and change the outmoded systems which have kept her farm yields at the lowest level in all Europe.

Vlada Janjic, chief of the foreign relations department of the State Cooperative Federation, said, "The problem is the structure of land holdings. There are so many small farms that it complicates development."

"The small land owner cannot afford to buy the machinery and new fertilizers needed to increase yields and improve the food supply of the state," Janjic said. "So we are turning to a system of rural cooperatives to help and assist the farmers."

Reds Clever in Distributing Books

Last year the Reds mixed Marx with Mozart in booklets sent to music lovers.

Hopes to Walk 70 Miles on 70th Birthday

LEETSDALE, Pa. (UP)—Alvin F. Bergman, a retired barber whose hobby is walking, said today he will take his annual birthday walk next week by pacing off 70 miles along the Atlantic City boardwalk.

Bergman, who will be 70 Tuesday, has been stepping off a mile for each year every birthday anniversary.

The Leetsdale barber, who estimates he has walked 99,895 miles during his lifetime of walking for relaxation, figures to hit the 300,000 mark for his birthday.

He will go to the New Jersey resort riday and on Saturday figures he will stroll for 25 miles along the boardwalk. On Monday, he plans to taper off to 10. On Tuesday, he will stride along for an additional 70 miles.

According to Bergman, there is no exercise more "dignified, less expensive, and more conducive to good health than walking."

Commission Would Study Constitution

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General Assembly today considered bipartisan legislation to create a temporary state commission to study the 83-year-old Pennsylvania Constitution for possible revision.

The House bill would appropriate 175 thousand dollars for use by a 15 member "Commission on Constitutional Revision" to conduct the study and report its findings to the 1959 Legislature. The bill was sponsored by Reps. Mary A. Duffy (D-Philadelphia) and Willard F. Agnew Jr. (R-Allegheny).

Churches Oppose H-tests

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa. (UP)—A church spokesman today called for a "firm commitment" by the U.S. government to halt H-bomb tests if scientists decide they are endangering health.

Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, director of the Commission of the Churches on International Affairs, said the United States has sound reasons for insisting that a ban on nuclear tests must be part of an overall international disarmament agreement.

But Nolde told leaders of 32 major Protestant denominations that the risks of an "inadequate agreement" with Russia must be run if at any time scientific opinion preponderantly asserts an immediate risk to ohalth from continuing nuclear tests.

In a speech before the U.S. Conference for the World Council of Churches, Nolde said there are "disagreements" among experts at present about the degree of danger to health caused by radioactive fallout from nuclear tests. He said the government should consider strongly the opinion of scientists "brought together under impartial international auspices, such as the United Nations Committee on Radiation Dangers."

Nolde, an associate general secretary of the World Council of churches, also warned that the Eisenhower Doctrine carries the danger of indirect U.S. "aggression against the will of the people" in some Middle East nations. Such "aggression" could result, he said, from using U.S. military aid to keep an unpopular government in power.

Dr. Walter Horton, professor of theology at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, told the final session of the three-day conference that Protestants are moving steadily but "cautiously" toward greater unity.

Horton predicted that historic headway toward unity will be achieved next September when 43 U.S. and Canadian denominations meet at Oberlin.

At this conference, for the first time, major denominations will grapple directly with differences in doctrine and organization that stand in the way of reunion, and will review "concrete ways and means" for achieving eventual organic unity.

Partial 'Open Skies' Plan May Be Accepted

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States is hinting it will accept a partial "open skies" aerial inspection plan limited to Europe, Alaska and the eastern reaches of Siberia, a study of Voice of America broadcasts showed today.

One broadcast said such a plan would be "an effective first step" in preventing surprise knockout attacks in the nuclear age. It said this kind of test area could be expanded to more important areas later.

The Europe - Alaska - Siberia compromise could be the American answer to a recent Soviet proposal for getting President Eisenhower's open skies inspection plan into operation.

The President proposed at the 1955 Big Four Summit meeting at Geneva that Russia and the United States agree to let each other make photo reconnaissance flights over each other's territory to make sure neither was massing for a surprise nuclear attack.

The Soviet Union at first belittled the idea. But Russia came forwardial current London disarmament negotiations with the suggestion that Russian sky inspectors be allowed to fly over Alaska and the entire western United States, with American inspectors permitted to fly over Siberia, a small section of western Russia and much of Europe.

The United States said this represented a significant advance over previous Russian positions but a detailed reply would have to await lengthy study.

However "Voice" now has given some detailed reaction. One broadcast contained the hint of a Europe - Alaska - Siberia compromise. It put it this way:

'It is felt that the first aerial inspection might take place in those areas where the American and Soviet forces are in closest juxtaposition to each other — in Europe and in the Bering Straits which separate Alaska and Siberia. This would be an effective first step in preventing large-scale surprise attack."

This thinking is in line with remarks by the President at his Wednesday news conference. He told questioners that disarmament inspection probably is "going to come about through some . . . evolutionary development."

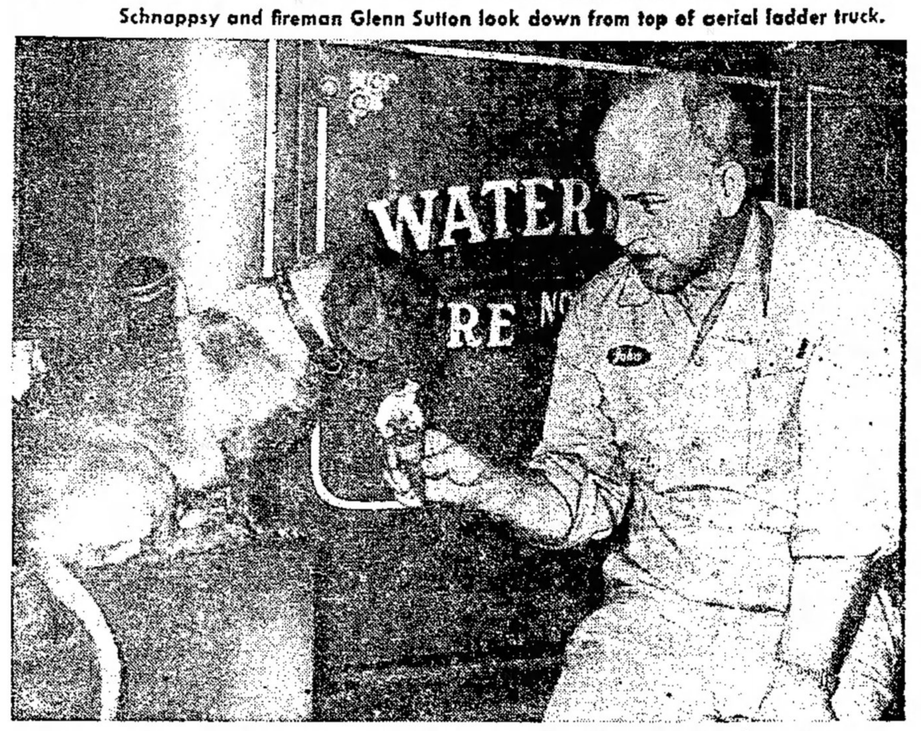
FIREHOUSE FRIEND

THOSE OTHER fire departments can have their Dalmatian mascots, but the fire chasers in Watertown, Wis., will stick with Schnappsy, their pedigreed dachshund who was named after a German drink. Schnappsy, who lives right in the firehouse, doesn't yet go to fires. He's only three months old and, besides, his legs are too short to permit him to jump on the trucks. When the fire alarm rings, he ducks under a desk. If the engines aren't going to fires, though, Schnappsy gets to ride along. Firemen and friends buy him food and Clarence W. Wetter, city editor of the Watertown Daily Times, stops in nearly every day to buy some ice cream for his dessert. As one fireman puts it, "Schnappsy eats just one meal a day, but it lasts all day." Schnappsy doesn't seem to be leading a "dog's life."

Schnappsy and fireman Glenn Sutton look down from top of aerial ladder truck.



His favorite delicacy is ice cream and John Gruel is seeing that he gets some.

Schnappsy, who has no uniform of his own, rests beside assistant chief's helmet.

Capitol Hill Meanness Apparent

WASHINGTON (UP)—It was be-mean-to-everybody day in Congress.

Warm spring weather stirred the sap in the old trees on Capitol Hill Wednesday while inside the Capitol bile-dipped arrows filled the air.

Cabinet members particularly were in season.

Rep. Robert W. Kean (R-N.J.) said if Secretary of State John Foster Dulles would do "less talking" with reporters there would be less "confusion about American foreign policy.

Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) said Congress "has been derelict in its duty" to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

"Long ago it should have offered him a one-way ticket to Utah," he said.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson took a shot at the head man himself. Johnson said President Eisenhower's defense of his budget and Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfields request for more postal funds looked "something like the old shell game."

"Now you see it, now you don't," he said.

A little earlier Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said he wanted to call everyone's attention to the fact that most of the defense of the Eisenhower program was coming from the Democrats.

He suggested that the best thing for the President to do would be to switch parties.

Then Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski (RWis.) took on the entire U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

O'Konski said the chamber "yells against sensible spending at home but urges bigger and better foregin aid giveaways." He said possibly "the chamber thinks taking aids from the blind, sick and crippled so that they can give it to England is economy."

Finally, even capital news-photographers got into the spirit of the day when one of the President's new helicopters almost landed on them at the White House.

However, their comments are being withheld because of postal regulations.

Parents Asking Damages in Suit

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP)—Parents of Richard Kern, Upper Darby, filed suit today to recover for injuries suffered by the boy when he was struck by an automobile in Franklin Twp., Westmoreland County, July 10, 1955.

Named defendant in the action was Robert Conalli, White Valley. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kern Jr., charged Conalli was operating his car at a "high and dangerous" speed when he struck their son, who was standing in the drive-way of the White Valley Athletic and Social Club.

The complaint said Richard suffered a fractured jaw, internal injuries and permanent facial disfigurement.

Wyatt Earp Claims He Is not Cowboy

By HUGH O'BRIAN

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — It was interesting to read Guinn Big Boy Williams' comments on the clothes I wear as TV's Wyatt Earp. He said if any real cowboys saw me in my usual Wyatt Earp get-up they would split their sides laughing. It wouldn't concern me, because on my Wyatt Earp show I don't play a cowboy.

By definition, a cowboy (or "cow man," as he was called) was a man who traveled the trail driving a herd of cattle to a particular destination. These men would have indeed looked silly dressed as Wyatt Earp. Even the cows would have had to laugh at this one.

Wyatt Earp was not a cowboy. He lived in town and was more like the city policeman of today. He wore the typical garb of a marshal of that time—the vest, black coat and matching hat, and striped pants. If he did happen to be out on the trail doing a job, he would dress like the typical cowboy we know.

Employed With "Trail" Garb

In fact, when Wyatt first accepted his job as marshal he had only his "trail" clothes. The townspeople offered to chip in and buy him his first "town" wardrobe, so that he could dress in keeping with the new job.

Actually Wayit tried to spend most of his time in town. He was the first man to employ psychological methods to law enforcement. Whenever possible, he tried to out-think rather than out-shoot the criminal. He didn't spend as much time on his horse as most people think.

If Mr. Williams would care to check the authenticity of the styles depicted on our show, he has but to check any public library or costume company. Our technical adviser on the show is Stuart N. Lake, who spent four years with Earp before he died. He is considered a supreme authority on this period and works on all phases of our show. His is the only authorized biography of Earp ever published.

Hats Authentic Too

Our script supervisor is Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, the father of all westerns. He did the first 10 scripts of our show and supervises all of them to make sure the writers conform to the character of Earp, as well as his manner and dress.

A lot has been said about Wyatt's hats. They, too, are authentic. These hats were chosen more for the purpose of keeping the sun out of the eyes than for style. They were even used to carry water! This is where the expression "ten gallon hat" originated, I imagine.

Some people have said to me, "How is it that you're playing a western character like Wyatt Earp when you come from Chicago?" This, too, reflects a lack of knowledge of the period. Most of the colorful and well-known western characters of this time, including many cowboys, were from the East.

Few Miles Save Lives For Group

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sixty-four Marshall Islanders dusted with "Bikini ashes" from the big H-bomb test of March 1, 1954, are alive today only because they lived on the south side of their native atoll.

If they had lived some 40 miles to the north, all would now be dead. As it was, all suffered radiation injury but have now recovered—as far as detectable effects are concerned.

This information about the so-called "Bravo Shot" of the 1954 H-bomb tests in the Pacific was disclosed for the first time in testimony released today by a House Appropriations Subcommittee.

The revealing testimony was by Dr. Frank H. Shelton, technical director of the armed forces special weapons project, which plays an important role in development and testing of atomic arms.

Although some of the facts reported by Shelton had been known to reporters, they never had been publicly stated before by any official.

Bravo was the extremely "dirty" bomb that alerted the world to the menace of radioactive fallout. In all, 239 Marshall Islanders living on atols east and southeast of Bikini suffered radiation injury.

The worst afflicted were 64 inhabitants of Rongelap, the nearest atoll to Bikini. They lived only on the southern side of their atoll, which is roughly 40 miles in its north-south dimension.

According to Shelton, if the natives had lived on the north side of their atoll, where the fallout was more intense, "all would have died."

Dravo to Build Towboat

A second twin-screw 148-foot diesel towboat will be built for Island Creek Fuel & Transportation Co., Hungtington, W. Va., by Dravo Corp., Pittsburgh, it was announced today.

Like its sister ship, the Raymond E. Salvati, which was launched last Summer, the new vessel will be used in the Ohio River coal trade. It will be powered by engines with a combined 2560 shaft horsepower.

Hull and rudder design features developed by Dravo during model basin tests in the Netherlands will give the boat greater barge-pushing ability than other towboats of a similar size and horsepower.

Some idea of the new boat's power can be gained from the fact that the Salvati regularly moves 20 bargeloads of coal upstream against the Ohio River current.

The all-welded steel craft will include such modern features as radar, ship-to-shore telephone, Kort nozzles, hydraulic steering system for the six rudders, reverse-reduction gears and metal-paneled interior walls. Officers and crew will be quartered in nine staterooms.

Other vessels in the sland Creek fleet, in addition to the Salvati, are the James D. Francis, built by Dravo in 1951, the Island Creek, the Black Onyx and the Porpoise.

Leader for Bill Allowing Cities To Choose Rule

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today endorsed legislation which would permit Pennsylvania's 47 third class cities to choose among several types of government.

The proposed law, although not mandatory, would permit the cities to choose the mayor-council or council-manager types of municipal government. The bill is in the Senate.

"Complexities of city government have increased but Pennsylvania's cities are still tied to a single form of government, a form which is often inadequate to meet the problems which confront it," Leader said. "If our cities are to grow they must be able to frame the charter that will answer their demands."

Changes in city government would have to be approved by a referendum and charter commissions would be established by citizen vote to study the adoption of one of the optional plans.

The proposal was sponsored by the Local Government Commission of the Assembly and approved by the Pennsylvania League of Cities.

Polish Primate Restores Faith of Church in Communistic Countries

By CHARLES RIDLEY

VATICAN CITY (UP) — The pilgrimage to The Vatican of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, primate of Poland, is significant for 75 million Roman Catholics suffering under Communist domination.

It is the first time a primate has been able to come from a land which the Polish Red regime failed to bring the Church to heel. It reflects The Vatican's faith that in the end the Church will triumph over Communism everywhere.

But high Vatican sources caution that the situation in Poland differs from other Iron Curtain countries and that even in Poland the church is officially considered to be under the grip of "atheistic Communism."

Fate Of Others

Vatican quarters consider the release of Wyszynski from jail by the new "independent" Polish Red regime only a "tenuous beginning of a minimum of religious liberty."

In Hungary, Primate Josef Cardinal Mindszenty is neutralized as a church leader. After a brief period of freedom at the start of the Hungarian rebellion, he took asylum in the U.S. Embassy, where he remains today.

In Czechoslovakia, Monsignor Josef Beran, archbishop of Prague, remains a prisoner in an unknown location.

In Yugoslavia, Primate Aloysius Cardinal Stepinac, though freed from prison, is confined to his native village and cut off from his flock.

In Rumania, the small Catholic Church has been virtually wiped out.

In all these countries, thousands of priests remain jailed or banished—or have been executed. Catholic quarters say 13,000 have been "removed" in these ways behind the Iron Curtain.

75,000,000 In Red Hands

Seventy - five million of the Church's 450 million adherents live in Communist - dominated countries, including Red China, the Baltic States and Eastern Europe. Of these, more than 25 million are in Poland.

The overwhelming religious faith of Polish Catholics showed itself in jampacked churches and in prayer throughout the worst terror of the Stalin era. But Vatican sources cite two other reasons why their opinion Poland stands apart from other Red-dominated lands:

In Poland's brief spell of national liberty before World War II, its regime was more democratic than some other Eastern European states.

In Poland's 1,000-year history of oppression by neighboring states, the oppressors, like Russia and Prussia, have been bitter enemies of the Church. Thus, the sources say, the Church became a symbol of resistance to oppression ingrained in the Polish character. Ninety per cent of the population is Catholic.

Pope Retains Confidence

For these reasons Pope Pius XII and the Holy See cling firmly to their faith in the Polish Church despite disturbing events which at times made it appear the hierarchy was going along with the Red regime.

Vatican sources say it would be "premature" to expect any solid developments soon on a new concordat between The Vatican and Poland's new independent Communist regime or establishment of diplomatic relations between Warsaw and the Holy See.

But in the new situation in Poland and in the very facttt hat Wyszynsky can come belatedly to receive his cardinal's red hat, Vatican officials see a "glimmer of hope."

Bill to Encourage Oil Speculators

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General Assembly has received bipartisan legislation to regulate and encourage gas and oil speculators to drill for land and offshore fuel deposits.

The legislative package was sponsored in the House Wednesday by House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) and Democratic Minority Leader Albert S. Readinger (Berks).

The legislation would create a non-salaried commission in the state Mines and Mineral Industries Department to administer a proposed oil and gas conservation law and regulate mineral rights which cross the state's boundaries.

Companion measures would safeguard any discoveries made by speculators to encourage their investments of "large" sums of money in prospecting and drilling.

Postal Cuts Appear Certain

WASHINGTON (UP)—New cuts in postal service appeared virtually certain today unless Congress restores reductions in the Post Office Department budget.

Chances of Congress restoring the reductions seemed very slim.

The Senate Appropriations Committee late Thursday ignored administration warnings of mail service cutbacks and approved a House cut of 58 million dollars in the postal budget for fiscal 1958.

The Senate was expected to approve the committee's action next week.

The move forecast possibly great trouble generally for President Eisenhower's record peacetime $71,800,000,000 budget.

In the past the Senate traditionally has restored a good part of House cuts in budgets.

The postal money bill was the first approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee this year giving the committee its first opportunity to show how economy-minded its members are.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield last month ordered drastic cuts in postal service including an end to Saturday deliveries when Congress balked at giving him an emergency appropriation of 47 million dollars.

After Congress rushed through a supplemental appropriation of 41 million dollars he retracted most of the curtailment orders.

Trooper Testifies at Murder Trial Today

LEWISTOWN, Pa. (UP)—A state trooper was slated to take the stand again today in the murder trial of Dr. Samuel L. Woodhouse Jr., 52, Milroy physician accused of slaying his foster daughter four years ago.

Trooper Clinton H. Cooper, who assisted in the murder investigation of Elizabeth L. Woodhouse, 16, Aug. 6, 1953, testified briefly Thursday as the second prosecution witness in the trial before Judge Paul S. Lehman in Mifflin County Court.

State Police Sgt. Edward P. Rowan, who headed the murder investigation, was on the stand most of the day. He testified he found the body of the slain girl on the floor of her bedroom and identified a .22 caliber rifle found in the physician's home as the murder weapon.

Under cross-examination by defense counsel Paul E. Fetterolf, Rowan was requested to read a 19-page statement made by Dr. Woodhouse after he was taken into custody. In the statement, the physician admitted the slaying and said he did it because his foster daughter was ill and unhappy.

Rifle Misfired

The statement also revealed the rifle used in the crime misfired on the first shot and the doctor said he had to pry the shell from the chamber and reload the rifle before he fired a shot into the sleeping girl's brain.

Both Rowan and Cooper identified a slug taken from the girl's brain as having been fired from the rifle found in the house. They also identified a knife found on the defendant as the one used to attack the daughter's pet dog.

At the outset of the trial, District Attorney R. Lee Ziegler said he will press for a conviction of first degree murder and ask the death penalty.

Dr. Woodhouse, who was recently released from Harrisburg State Hospital, was expected to ask acquittal through his attorney on the ground he was insane at the time of the crime.

2 Card of Thanks

MICHELUCCI — We wish to thank the many thoughtful friends and neighbors who extended us kindness in our recent bereavement, the death of Angelo Michelucci. The ministrations of Rev. Nunzio Pirulli, the Rev. Leonard Sanesi, the Rev. Theodore Penkovic; the services of the Northern Italian Political Association, the Garibaldi Beneficial Society of Dunlevy; masses, floral tributes, expressions of sympathy, spiritual comfort, cars loaned for the funeral and the aid of the pall bearers; as well as all those who assisted at the funeral will be remembered with gratitude.

Mrs. Margaret Michelucci and Mr. and Mrs. James Michelucci.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear father, and grandfather, Leopold Waxman, who died 19 years ago today, May 10, 1938.

Before our eyes he faded.
Growing weaker every day.
Doing all we could to save him,
Until God took him away.
His face will never be forgotten
For we think of him every hour.
So he lives in our memory forever
'Tis sad but true, we wonder why,
The best are always first to die.

Sadly missed by Daughters, Sons and Grandchildren.

Patrice Munsel Will Get TV Show in Fall

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—The channel swim...

An automobile company (Buick) has decided to build a half-hour series around opera star Patrice Munsel this fall. The time spot will be Friday night on ABC-TV.

William Ewald

The Bob Crosby afternoon show on CBS-TV is shaky with "You the Jury" beginning to shape up as its replacement. NBC-TV has decided to ditch "Blondie" in favor of "The Court of Last Resort."

"Playhouse 90" is trying to wrangle permission to do the stories of Flo Ziegfeld, John Barrymore and Damon Runyon. Nan Fabray has decided to drop out of "June", a TV series for which she recently cut a pilot film.

Welles Worries All

Orson Welles pulled a "great man" bit during Steve Allen rehearsals last week. He showed up for rehearsals a couple of days late and didn't even notify Allen of the routine he planned to do until four hours before airtime. Welles finally settled on "Merchant of Venice" after Allen's crew had gnawed their nails down to the knuckles.

ABC-TV is quietly experimenting with video tape on its "Medical Horizons' show. Part of Jackie Gleason's summer replacement looks like old 30-minute Jimmy Durante film shows.

June Havoc totes three pooches to rehearsals of NBC-TV's "Mr. Broadway"—she parks them on a reception desk outside the studio. "Studio One" got its lease at CBS-TV renewed through the 1957-58 season.

Vic Damone got the nod as Arthur Godfrey's summer replacement on Wednesday nights. "Arthur Murray Party" will be switched by NBC-TV from its Tuesday spot into a Wednesday slot beginning July 1.

"Hotel Cosmopolitan" elbows out "Valiant Lady" on CBS-TV July 8. "Circus Boy" moves from NBC-TV to ABC-TV next fall. "Bride and Groom," off TV for three years, comes back to NBC-TV July 1.

Moore Celebrates Anniversary

The Garry Moore show celebrates its seventh anniversary June 26, with the original cast of Moore, Durward Kirby, Denise Lor and Ken Carson still around. Garry estimates they've done some 12,500 pages of comedy sketches over that span.

A 30-minute mystery series starring George Sanders will fill in for part of the Sid Caesar show on NBC-TV this summer. Something called "Key Club Playhouse" moves in to the "Treasure Chest" spot on ABC-TV during the warm months.

An auto company (Ford) has given the okay for five Lucille Ball-Desi Arnez one hour shows on CBS-TV next fall. CBS-TV is killing off "Big Top". Jerry Lewis will do his next NBC-TV special on June 8 with Eydie Gorme.

And a note from Tennessee Ernie Ford about the confusion over Daylight Savings Time. "I not only get mixed up," says Ford, "I have a rooster who has a nervous breakdown every year along this time."

Your Health—

Over-protecting Baby Can Give Him Miliaria

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Do not protect that baby of yours too much.

Wrapping him in too much clothing or keeping him in a room that is too warm may result in miliaria — miliaria, not malaria.

There are several forms of miliaria, an inflammatory skin condition which results from prolonged sweating. Most common probably is muliaria rubra, or prickly heat.

In such cases, the sweat pores become blocked and the perspiration is retained within the living portion of the skin. The result is the appearance of the familiar tiny papules which cause tingling or burning sensation.

Generally such lesions occur on the body, the face, neck or forehead, wherever clothing rubs against the skin.

The prickly heat will disappear within a few days if you keep the youngster in a cool place and make him remain fairly quiet.

Another form of the disorder is miliaria crystallina.

In this instance, the sweat pores are blocked nearer the surface and the perspiration is retained within the dead, outer layer of the skin.

There is no inflammation on the skin and the lesions might not even be noticed. The condition clears up quickly.

Miliaria pustulosa is another form. This is a secondary infection which follows after some other skin inflammation has already blocked the sweat pores.

All forms of miliaria have one thing in common — they cause sweat to be secreted into the skin rather than onto it.

Easiest way of preventing the disorder is to reduce or eliminate the cause for perspiring. In warm weather this means light clothing, good ventilation or even air conditioning.

Is that you humming happily around the house just about every day of the year?

Or is it an automatic dishwasher? A vacuum cleaner? A fan or a food mixer?

Surely, some of the humming must be yours, for the many ways electricity lightens your work is something to be happy about.

The men and women of your electric company are busily at work every day in your behalf, too—building more power now for your even happier electric future.

You can count on plenty of electricity—always.

HEART BEATS AGAIN — Vito Galasso, 13, really has a happy birthday in Burbank, Calif., as his nurses throw a party at the end of a long ordeal. Vito was burned over 40 per cent of his body when plane wreckage hurtled down on the junior high school playground in Pacoima, Calif. His heart stopped beating twice during an operation later.

Republic Steel Has Plans for School Building

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UP)—Republic Steel Corporation has entered the school construction industry.

The company made a bid for part of the nation's 10-year, $32 billion school building program Wednesday disclosing designs for a new one-story school constructed of steel and glass.

The school costs less, can be built in as little as one-fourth the normal time, and has "built in" expandability, according to C. B. McGehee, general manager of Republic's Truscon Division.

McGehee said the school uses steel and glass "curtain wall" panels bolted together to form the exterior walls. The end walls can be moved out to provide additional classroom space and then be bolted together again.

Special units, such as auditoriums and gymnasiums, can be built into the school or apart from it. McGehee said two of the schools, designed primarily for suburban settings, are under construction in Indiana.

Life on USS Forrestal not Soft Touch, Regardless of Luxuries

By LARRY COLLINS

ABOARD USS FORRESTAL (UP) — They use code names like "Mickey Mouse" and "Donald Duck" aboard this aircraft carrier to play a deadly game of hide-and-seek with supersonic jet fighters.

Even in practice the game is dangerous. The sky is big but it shrinks fast in the inky Mediterranean night for two jets hurtling toward each other at 700 miles an hour.

Yet the game must be played night and day. Bomber interception is the one skill these pilots sharpen and sharpen and sharpen. They must be 100 per cent right, tonight and on the night—if it ever comes—when they might play for real.

For it would take just one enemy plane with just one atom bomb to turn this beautiful 250-million dollar, 59,560-ton ship into radioactive scrap.

Game of Chase

I watched one of those games of chase flown by three pilots of VF14, the Navy's storied "top hat" squadron, now dancing above the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean in F3H McDonnell Demon all-weather jets.

Lt. (jg) Ed Feeks, New York City, was "it." He headed his Demon on an outbound vector 200 miles east, looping back toward the ship near the island of Cyprus, trying to sneak back in for an "attack."

In the squadron ready room, Mae Wests fastened, helmets at their side and chatting in the infra-red light, sat Squadron Leader John Pratt, of Whitehall, Ill., and his wingman, Lt. (jg) John Mulchay, of Jacksonville, Fla.

When a blue pinhead "blip" showed on a radar screen deep below-decks, Pratt and Mulchay scrambled for their planes. Twin steam catapults threw them into the sky at 160 miles an hour.

"Roger Mickey Mouse 15," McKeevy said to Pratt. "Eye hold you pigeons three two zero 50 miles to Donald Duck on my gadget. Take angels 40. . ."

It was seven minutes from the sighting of the "enemy" on the radarscope when Pratt called out in triumph, "splash one Demon."

Such maneuvers are the business of the Forrestal, a floating city equipped not only for the threat of action but to house 4,000 men for peace-time patrol.

These men consume six tons of food a day in numbers like this—840 pies for one meal, 2,000 pounds of potatoes a meal, 25,000 cups of coffee a day.

Pilots and deckside officers ride to work from below-decks on escalators. Getting around the miles of passageways is worse than finding your way out o the Pentagon. Fortunately there are cutaway maps.

Puffer fish, found in all warm seas, fill themselves with air when approached. They have been known to puff too much and burst.
